

City Code Enforcement--Work Pays Off

By HUGH REYNOLDS
KINGSTON
The city of Kingston accepted a federal challenge and now has $610,000 to improve three blighted areas of the city through a code enforcement grant.
City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe summed up the three years of work behind the approval of the federal grant this way, "The government takes a sort of 'show me' attitude when it comes to code enforcement. I think we've shown them."
Radcliffe explained that in order to have a code enforcement program approved the city has to prove that it is conducting a code enforcement program of its own. The government calls it a workable program and without approval of a workable program the city cannot receive federal funds for any new projects.

The city's code enforcement program consists of inspections of Kingston, which is divided into 10 areas for inspection purposes. Two areas are inspected each year and the whole city is inspected over a five-year period.
This new code enforcement program will cover three areas of the city. Area number one is bounded by Greenkill Avenue, Clinton Avenue and St. James Street. Area number two is bounded by Yeomans Street, Abrynn Street, the Strand and Tompkins Street. Area number three is a small section including parts of North and Willow Streets.

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan had indicated that the program would get started in August of this year. According to the federal plan, the first step would be to establish a field office in the Tenth Ward area of the project.
After that a project director and staff will be appointed. It is suggested in the report that the project director be paid a salary of $10,000 per year for the three-year duration of the program.
Once the staff is set up it will meet with area residents to explain the program. After meetings with area residents the objectives of the program are to be refined and finalized.
It is expected that there may be some demolition of those structures that are impossible to rehabilitate. However, Radcliffe has emphasized that rehabilitation is the goal of the program, not demolition and that the latter will be employed only as a last resort.

Special
It is expected that approximately 40 per cent of the structures will be given detailed inspections and recommendations made to the owners as to the upgrading of their properties during the first year. The problem of payment for repairs then arises and this is where the federal money comes in. This is no giveaway program, according to Radcliffe. The money will be borrowed, if the home owner chooses, from the federal government through this program at three per cent interest for up to 20 years.

The homeowner, however, never sees the money, Radcliffe explained the procedure, thusly: "The inspectors thoroughly check a house for violations in such areas as electrical wiring, plumbing, heating, railings on staircases, etc. It is basically a safety check. The inspector then draws up a list of items that have to be corrected in order for the house to be brought up to housing standards."
Then, according to Radcliffe, the work is put out to bid to contractors. Once a cost is established the homeowner can borrow the money through the federal program to have his house repaired. The limit is $3,000 per owner.

Radcliffe was asked about the availability of outright grants. "These are possible, he said. "A homeowner has to prove that he would be unable to repay a loan. This would apply to those persons with an income of less than $3,000 per year. If the grant is approved, the work is done and the contractor paid." The homeowner, himself, does not receive any money.
The mayor of the city, as its chief executive officer, would, have the overall responsibility for the Kingston Home Improvement Program. The majority and minority leaders of the Common Council, the chairman of the housing codes commission and the city treasurer will serve as a committee to assist the mayor, according to federal requirements for the program.

The program will also entail some public improvements, although Radcliffe says these should be limited to paving of streets and planting of trees since most major public facilities (sewage and water) are already installed in the three areas set aside for concentrated code enforcement.
The city is currently awaiting approval of the funds for the program which should come within the next few weeks.

GI Raps Captors--No Coffee Breaks

SAIGON (UPI)—A U.S. Army sergeant escaped nine months of Communist captivity and flagged down an American helicopter four days later for a ride to safety Friday, military spokesmen said today.
"When they picked me up, I was actually crying," the announcement quoted Sgt. Kenneth R. Gregory, 23, of Altus, Okla.
The U.S. Military Command said Gregory was in good condition but had lost 10 pounds since his capture last Aug. 25 in an ambush near Tay Ninh City, 60 miles northwest of Saigon.
Nurses at the U.S. Army Evacuation Hospital in Long Binh north of Saigon fed Gregory fried chicken for his first meal—"the best food I've had in a long time," he said.
The announcement gave no details of Gregory's escape, saying only that he broke free Monday and was picked up Friday 12 miles northwest of Tay Ninh City by a helicopter of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division.
He was the second American to escape the Communists in less than two months. On April 17, Spec. 5 Thomas H. Van Putten, 21, of Caledonia, Mich., was picked up in the same area following 14 months in captivity.
The item Gregory missed most while in Viet Cong hands: "Coffee. The VC don't drink coffee. They like hot sweetened water and tea."
His next hospital meal after the chicken was a steak dinner with vegetables, potatoes, jello, lettuce and tomatoes, ice cream and milk.
Normal procedure would have Gregory shipped home as soon as possible, perhaps Sunday, following debriefing by intelligence officers and physical examinations.

"The first thing I'm planning is to spend some time with my family," said Gregory, who entered the Army in May 1964 and arrived in Vietnam on Nov. 2, 1967. "We'll probably go camping somewhere."
Vietnam peace strategy was on the agenda for President Nixon during his holiday stay in Florida. The President is meeting with Secretary of State Rogers who flew in Friday night. Story Page 14.
His wife and mother are both in Altus.
Gregory was a squad leader in command of a five-truck convoy which the Viet Cong ambushed near Tay Ninh City, 90 tons of bombs on Communist leading to his capture. He has been listed as missing in action. Meanwhile, with B52 bombers leading the way, U. S. troops went back on the offensive to follow a one-day truce that cost 13 Americans dead and 62 wounded.

Announcing the casualties, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams' military command accused the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese of 158 violations of the Allies' cease-fire, 85 of them serious.
The U.S. and South Vietnamese truce ended at 6 a.m. Saigon time (6 p.m. Friday EDT), with the Communists finishing their 48-hour cease-fire for Buddha's birthday an hour later.
American B52 bombers swept over Saigon's northern outskirts almost immediately, dropping 90 tons of bombs on Communist bivouacs 45 miles northwest of the capital, military spokesmen said.

On the northern coast, a squad of U.S. helicopter gunships caught a Viet Cong platoon in the open after 6 a.m. and killed 11 guerrillas without an American casualty.
Military spokesmen reporting on the truce said at least 89 guerrillas were killed in fighting during the Allied stand-down. Ground fire downed two U.S. copters, killing one American crewman and wounding three.
South Vietnamese headquarters said there were 71 Communist-initiated incidents involving its troops and civilians from the time the guerrilla truce began until the Allied truce ended, a period of 47 hours.

MEMORIAL MARCH — Upwards of 10,000 persons were reported on the sidelines witnessing the annual Memorial Day parade in Kingston Friday. ### Six Dead in 2-Day Violence

Argentine City--Every Corner Guarded

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP)—Snipers and soldiers battled through the night in Cordoba, where six persons have been killed in two days of violence. The rest of Argentina was relatively calm today after the most effective general strike in more than 10 years.
Every Corner Guarded
Trucks and armored personnel carriers rumbled through the streets of the nation's third largest city, 500 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. Soldiers guarded every corner of the downtown area. Gunshots echoed continually as troops searched for snipers.

An adventuresome taxi driver agreed to drive out-of-town newsmen from the airport into the city. With his lights out, he wound through the streets, around bonfires, piles of broken glass and overturned lamp posts.
As the taxi passed through the Clinicas district, the center of agitation where many students live, shots rang out every few seconds.
"The people are dissatisfied," the driver said. "First, the government raised bus fares, then it was milk, then bread—but salaries stayed the same."

He stopped at a darkened service station. "This is as far as I'll take you. You'll find the army starting at the next block."
Orders to Kill
The military has taken control of the entire city of 800,000 people. Gen. Eleodoro Sanchez Lahoz has publicly ordered his soldiers to kill anyone on the street without permission during the dusk-to-dawn curfew.
Scores of shop windows in the downtown area were broken, and debris littered the streets. No civilians—only soldiers—were in sight.

The army estimated that the two days of bloody rioting in the nation's prosperous auto center caused $14 million in property damage, half the city's annual budget.
No Place Safe
No place in town was safe. A woman and her young son leaned out a window of a luxury hotel and were cut down by bullets. Both were in serious condition.
A man standing on a balcony of the same hotel across from a police station was shot dead. Authorities said he was a sniper, but hotel guests said he had just leaned out on the balcony to watch.

Police said two snipers were killed Friday night, bringing the death toll to six.
A thousand striking workers and students tried to march two miles from a suburb to the center of the city Friday and were fired on by army troops.
The violence broke out Thursday when workers walked off their jobs 12 hours before a national general strike was scheduled to begin. About 6,000 auto workers gathered to march downtown and broke through a police cordon. Police then opened fire.
"This is being directed from outside," an air force commander said. "Our citizens could not have organized activities like this with such military precision."

But a downtown policeman reported that "every time a demonstrator would light fires, the people would come out of their houses and give them more wood and paper. We couldn't stop it."
The 24-hour national strike was called to protest what the unions called police brutality in the government's efforts to halt almost daily student demonstrations during the past two weeks. At least 11 persons have been killed since the police shooting of a student May 15 during a protest demonstration against a 9-cents-a-meal increase in food prices at the university in Cordoba.

The strike Friday was peaceful throughout most of the nation, but most commerce, industry and transportation ground to a halt.

HOPES FOR A REVIEW—U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird (L), returning from a week of NATO meetings, said he hopes a proposed Canadian troop withdrawal would not have a "snowballing effect on Congress or the U.S. commitment to NATO. He added that he hoped the proposal would be reviewed by Ottawa. The defense boss is shown here with British Defense Minister Denis Healey during meeting in London. (UPI CABLE- PHOTO)

2 Drownings Mar Holiday, Dutchess and Greene Boys

By WALTER S. CLARK
RED HOOK
Tragedies involving the accidental deaths of two small children in separate drownings in the area, marred the Memorial Day observance in the mid-Hudson Valley on Friday. A rash of traffic accidents resulted in injuries to many tourists and authorities cited several drivers for violations.
U. S. Toll Higher
Deaths on the nation's highways were running ahead of last year's rate today. The death rate for the first part of this year's 78-hour holiday ran 50 per cent ahead of a year ago, and then dropped to 33 per cent going into today.
The U. S. death toll on highways reached 263 before noon and New York State had recorded at least 15 fatalities.
A 2-year-old boy drowned Friday in an above-ground pool at his home in this Northern Dutchess County community. Greene County authorities reported a 2-year-old boy drowned in a pond near Catskill while he and his parents were visiting friends for the holiday.
Both deaths were ruled accidental following investigations by State Police.
The Victims
Victim of the drowning in this village was Tracy Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lane of Yance Street. The boy and his two older brothers went to an above-ground pool in the backyard at about 6:45 p. m. Friday. Tracy, authorities said, apparently climbed the stairs leading to the pool platform and toppled into the water.

Sometime later he was missed and his father was notified. He ran to the pool and saw the boy lying on the bottom. Lane leaped into the water and recovered the body. The Red Hook Rescue Squad was summoned and the victim was rushed to the Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck, where he was pronounced dead. Asst. Medical Examiner Dr. Michael Baden ruled the death accidental, due to suffocation by drowning.
Leon Edward Martin, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Martin, of Pennsylvania Avenue, Palenville, drowned accidentally when he fell in a pond west of the Carson City Frontier Town on Route 32 in the Town of Catskill shortly before 7:30 p. m. Friday.
The boy and his parents had been visiting friends at the time of the tragedy. He had been playing with other children when he was missed and his father and others went looking for him and Martin discovered the body floating on the surface of the water. He carried the boy to shore and later the child was rushed to Green County Memorial Hospital in Catskill where he was pronounced dead. Greene County Coroner Henry Millsbaugh, who investigated the drowning with BCI Investigator T. G. Martin and Trooper M. J. Pagan of the Leeds Substation, ruled death of the child accidental due to drowning.
Tires Blow
Thruway State Police investigated two traffic accidents that were caused when tires blew out on the rear of two vehicles in separate one-car mishaps on Memorial Day. Five persons were injured and taken to hospitals in the city for treatment. Trooper John Turk reported Carol Skolnick, 22, of Irvington, was driving a station wagon on the superhighway about two miles south of the state police station at 11 a. m. Friday when a tire blew out causing her to lose control. The vehicle overturned on the driving lane. The operator and two passengers, Nancy Broderick, 21, of Middleport and Regina Waters, 20, of Hicksville, L. I., were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance for treatment.

At 1 a. m. Friday, Mrs. Barbara Licata, 26, of Brooklyn, was operating the family station wagon on the Thruway when a rear tire blew out causing the vehicle to careen out of control and overturn. The woman was cited by Trooper Joseph Stinton for driving a car without a license. Injured and taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance for treatment were Mrs. Licata's children, Laurie, 5, and Regina, 4. The summons is returnable later before New Paltz Town Justice Rexford Scheider.
Two men were injured at 2:30 a. m. today when the car in which they were riding went out of control and overturned in a ditch off Route 52 in the Town of Wawarsing. Troopers J. E. Kelly and R. F. O'Donnell of Ellenville State Police cited the driver, Carlton Deming, 22, of New Lisbon, for failure to keep to the right. Deming and a passenger, Mark Mackson, 27, of Monticello, were injured and said they would see their own doctors.

What in the World!

Columbus Apollo?

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The Apollo 11 moon ship would be named Columbus and its lunar module Santa Maria if an organization of Italian-Americans has its way.
The request to name the command ship after Christopher Columbus, founder of the new world, and the module after one of Columbus' three ships was made to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration by the National Columbus Day Committee.

Alliance Vital: Javits

The New York Republican told a meeting of the American Club of Paris that the end of the Vietnam war would allow the United States to resume its full role in the Atlantic community.

Husak said those ousted from the central committee include former Deputy Premier Ota Sik, architect of Czechoslovakia's 1968 economic reform program, Frantisek Kriegel, popular head of the National Front prior to the Soviet invasion last August, and Frantisek Vodslon, a liberal who voted against the Russian troop treaty last October.

Ordination Rites Are First at Mount

ESOPUS

Twenty students of Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary were ordained to the office of deacon recently in a new ceremony used for the first time.

Bishop James E. McManus, CSsR, episcopal vicar of Ulster and Sullivan Counties, officiated at the ceremony and at the concelebrated Mass with professors and student priests at the seminary.

In addition to the ordination of deacons, 13 men received minor offices in the same ceremony.

The 20 new deacons come from every corner of the United States. Included in the group are men from Brazil, one of the countries in which many of the new deacons will work as missionaries in years to come.

The next step for these men will be ordination to the priesthood in June, followed next year by graduate studies at Mt. St. Alphonsus and parish work in Ulster County. Upon completion of this final year of study they will receive their assignments to missionary, parish, and special preaching and retreat work.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bureau of the Budget task force has estimated it would cost $2.9 billion more than the government is now spending on food programs to assure an adequate diet for the poor.

This is far more than President Nixon's recommendation of a $270 million boost in the food stamp program for the coming fiscal year and a $1 billion increase the following year.

The task force analysis said spending on food programs, now about $1.5 billion a year, including $340 million spent on food stamps, would have to be almost tripled by adding another $2.9 billion in some form.

The figures, presented as a working draft designed as "a point of departure for discussion and improvement," were part of a six-month study by an interdepartmental Budget Bureau group for the Urban Affairs Council.

It was pegged to statistics showing that some 20.8 million Americans are below the poverty line, defined as slightly more than $3,000 income a year for an urban family of four.

The working draft was dated May 6, the same day Nixon submitted his special hunger message to Congress.

The draft contains several proposed changes for federal food programs but said:

"No claim is made that the list is either exhaustive, original, or in any way competes with the President's program."

The proposed changes include putting food stamp payments on the installment plan, establish-

French Vote On Sunday

PARIS (AP) — Interim President Alain Poper lost popularity points today while former Premier Georges Pompidou held firm in the last public opinion poll before Sunday's presidential election.

Poper dropped two points to 25 per cent of the total vote according to a poll in the mass circulation newspaper France-Soir. It was the fourth straight poll in which Poper's popularity dwindled from a peak of 37 per cent May 14.

Pompidou maintained 41 per cent as the month-long campaign touched off by Gen. Charles De Gaulle's resignation April 28 came to an end. Professional opinion samplers had been remarkably accurate in forecasting the national referendum defeat that led De Gaulle to quit.

See Food Bill for Poor Near $3 Billion

ing emergency loan programs to help the poor pay for stamps, and establishing standards to insure "that all poverty families are eligible."

Further, it suggests introducing funds to help states extend tion of the commodity distribution program "at least on an interim basis, into the 480 counties and cities now without a food program" and use of federal funds to help states extend food programs into new areas. Speaking broadly, the task force said: "standardization of welfare payments, federal cash grants or child allowances should be used to increase people's ability to purchase food."

Looking to the future, the task force said: "If progress in reducing the number of poor were to take place at the same pace in the future as it has in the recent past, poverty (as presently defined) would be eliminated early by 1983."

"But this is probably an overly optimistic prediction."

Duet Program This Evening at Woodstock

"A program as fresh as spring, and graciousness of manner in singing it, made an unusually appealing evening of the duet program given by Carolyn Friday, soprano, and Ruth Conway, mezzo-soprano, last night at Carnegie Recital Hall."

This was the manner in which the New York Times greeted the recital this past spring of Ruth Conway and Carolyn Friday who will make a local appearance this evening at the Woodstock Playhouse.

M. Edgar Rosenblum, producer at the Playhouse, feels that he has made an unusual catch in bringing these two fine singers to the area with a most delightful program of works by Purcell, Monteverdi, Schumann, Dvorak, Brahms and Mozart.

The New York Times went on to say that "both women sang with high musical intelligence and with a warmth of spirit that made it seem as though they were sharing the evening with friends rather than performing on a stage."

As important as the performers themselves is the outstanding pianist, Ryan Edwards. Mr. Edwards, one of the country's most respected accompanists, is a graduate of Florida State University. He received a double Fulbright Scholarship in 1957 in piano and composition with which he studied in Paris at the Sorbonne and with Miss Nadia Boulanger. He has had performances of his compositions of ballet, chamber music, operas, Children's Theatre scores and songs throughout the world. In addition to accompanying and composing Edwards is coaching and teaching privately in his own New York studio.

Edwards is the accompanist for Phyllis Curtin and has been the opera coach at the Aspen Festival, Aspen, Col., the musical director of the Traveling Playhouse in New York City, pianist for the New York City Center Ballet Company and the Musical Director of the Music Drama Workshop.

This unusual recital of duets will be for one night only. Tickets may be purchased at the Playhouse box office.

MRS. JOHN EDGAR WHITE

(Lakeside Studio)

MRS. ROBERT F. LAVERY

(Reynolds Photo)

St. Joseph's Normal Institute, Barrytown, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Maryann Hericourt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard R. Hericourt of Rhinebeck and John Edgar White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar White of Rhinebeck, Saturday, May 17.

The Rev. Charles Joseph Koerber of New York City celebrated the nuptial Mass and officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Alice Goldrick of Kingston, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Pedestal bouquets of white gladioli, carnations and yellow daisies, decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length organza gown appliqued with pearls, featuring a chapel train. A four tier fingertip veil served as her headpiece and she carried a bouquet of baby carnations in cascade arrangement.

Mrs. Edouard A. Hericourt of Stanfordsville was matron of honor for her sister-in-law. She wore a yellow chiffon gown, styled with contoured panel train of satin. Fresh daisies in French curls served as her headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of daisies and baby's breath.

John L. Rider of Red Hook served as best man. Ushers were Thomas Merryweather, Donald Williams, both of Rhinebeck; Edouard A. Hericourt, brother of the bride, Stanfordsville.

After the wedding a garden party and reception was held at Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston.

For her wedding trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, the bride selected a beige linen sheath dress with olive green and beige print linen coat, and dark brown accessories.

The bride, a graduate of Pine Plains Central School and Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing, is employed at Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck.

Her husband, an alumnus of Rhinebeck Central School, served four years in the U.S. Navy, and is employed at Williams Lumber Company, Rhinebeck.

The couple will reside at Fox Hollow Road, Rhinebeck.

Miss Diane Carol Pritchard, daughter of Mrs. Clara M. Pritchard, 145 O'Neil Street, Kingston, and N. Delton Pritchard of St. Remy, exchanged nuptial vows with Robert Francis Lavery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lavery of 14 President's Place, this city, on Sunday, May 18, at St. Peter's Church, Kingston.

The Rev. Daniel J. Costin officiated at the double ring ceremony. Nan Goldrick, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of Chantilly lace, styled with a scoop neckline and long sleeves, accented with a satin bow at the waistline. A sweetheart bow styled with white ribbon and streamers served as her headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and pompons.

Susan Lavery of Kingston, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor. She wore a street-length lemon colored floral print dress and carried a nosegay of yellow roses and miniature pompons.

Frank Lavery, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Norman Darbyson and Wayne Darbyson, both of Albany.

After the wedding, a luncheon for the immediate family was held at Holiday Inn. A reception took place later at the bride's home for relatives and friends.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute

FREE ADVICE IMPOSITION ON PROFESSIONALS

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. If the writer will send me her name and address, I will be delighted to send her a copy of

Emily Post's Etiquette.

Dear Mrs. Post: Over the years you have preached in your column that courtesy and thoughtfulness are the most important part of good manners. However, sometimes the nicest people do not even consider the fact that they are imposing upon a friendship. My husband, at one time, was an accountant. He left that line of work many years ago, but most of his friends still remember it when income tax time comes around. My husband is a very kind man and winds up giving these people every free evening and weekend until April 15th. He does not mind the time involved, if only they would be thoughtful enough not to all expect help right on the deadline date.

I hope that some people will recognize themselves in the description and not impose upon the skill or talent of a friend before they make sure that they are not demanding more of the friend than they have a right to expect.—"A Faithful Reader"

Dear "F.R.": I hope this letter will serve as a lesson to people who impose on professionals in all fields. Doctors are constantly approached—on social occasions—by people who want medical advice; teachers are pursued by mothers who feel that a dinner party is the time to discuss their children's problems; and professional entertainers are frequently asked to perform when attending private parties.

The people making such demands are not consciously being inconsiderate—they are merely thoughtless. They do not stop to think that such an off-hours request is truly an invasion of privacy.

Respect for another's privacy is a cardinal rule of good manners, and infringing on this rule is in the poorest taste. Before you look for a little "free advice," remember that professional men, like all others, need to escape from their business. They need relaxation as much as anyone else, and common courtesy demands that they be allowed to relax and enjoy their leisure hours without constant requests for professional advice or performance.

The 1969 Loyalty Day Committee, Veterans of Foreign Wars and its Ladies Auxiliary, expresses its sincerest thanks to the populace of Saugerties who helped in any way to make its May 3 church services, parade and essay contest the tremendous success that it was. Patriotism is NOT dead!

Friends Need Not Apply

At least five close friends were ruled out of consideration for Chief Justice of the Supreme Court when President Nixon made the decision that could have a more lasting influence even than his own presidency. Mr. Nixon did not want to be accused of cronyism, the charge that defeated President Johnson's choice for Chief Justice, former Associate Justice Abe Fortas, last year.

Describing the human side of how he chose Warren Earl Burger for Chief Justice, Nixon said it began almost from the moment he was elected. Chief Justice Earl Warren had already indicated his desire to retire. Mr. Nixon told how one prominent possibility after another ruled himself out for the post.

Four took themselves out of the running—Justice Potter Stewart, Attorney General John N. Mitchell, former Attorney General Herbert Brownell and former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, twice Republican candidate for President. Mr. Nixon ruled out two of his closest friends, Washington attorney Charles S. Rhyne, and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, simply because he thought it would not be in the best interest of the Court at this time to name a personal friend.

While he is President, Mr. Nixon said the Court will not be used for the purpose of racial, religious or geographical balance. He would not consider that there is a Jewish seat or a Catholic seat or a Negro seat on the Court. Nor would he ever clear any Supreme Court nominee with the Republican National Committee or with any member of Congress. This is one responsibility he assumes alone.

Mr. Nixon told of how Justice Stewart ruled himself out because he felt a sitting Justice should not be put above his colleagues; Dewey, 67, took himself out because of age; Brownell because he thought his nomination would be controversial; and Mitchell because of his political association with the President. Apparently, all who were seriously under consideration thought of the Court first—and the President agreed with them.

It Is Not Mawkish

A professor of English dared tell his class that it is of the most self-centered, self-pitying, confused generations that has tried to get petulant and regressive demands by Storm Trooper tactics. He declared also that the Generation Gap is one of the delusions of this generation. Prof. Lawrence Lee of Pittsburgh University said that the "gap" is no more or less than the difference in point of view between those who have lived a long while and those who have just begun to live—the relationship of father and son.

Prof. Lee got a standing ovation when he gave the class this last word: "It is not mawkish to love one's country. The country, with all of its agony and all of its faults, is still the most generous and the most open society on earth. All generations need the help of all others. Ours is asking yours to be men rather than children, before some frightened and ignorant tyrant with the aid of other frightened and ignorant men seeks to make all of us slaves in reaction to your irresponsibility."

If they have learned anything at their colleges and universities, the young generation should ponder these words and take them to heart.

Canada—No Tax Haven

If you're toying with the idea of fleeing the country to escape taxation with representation, don't head north.

So far this year, five of the 10 Canadian provinces have passed a spate of tax increases, reports Commerce Clearing House.

In Ontario, the sales tax was doubled to 10 per cent on liquor, wine and beer and all meals costing $2.50 or more. Ontario residents also saw their cigarette tax boosted by 25 per cent.

Taxpayers in New Brunswick were socked with a 10 per cent surcharge on personal income and higher rates on gasoline, tobacco, liquor and retail sales. The latter was not only hiked from 6 to 8 per cent but broadened to include services such as laundry and dry cleaning.

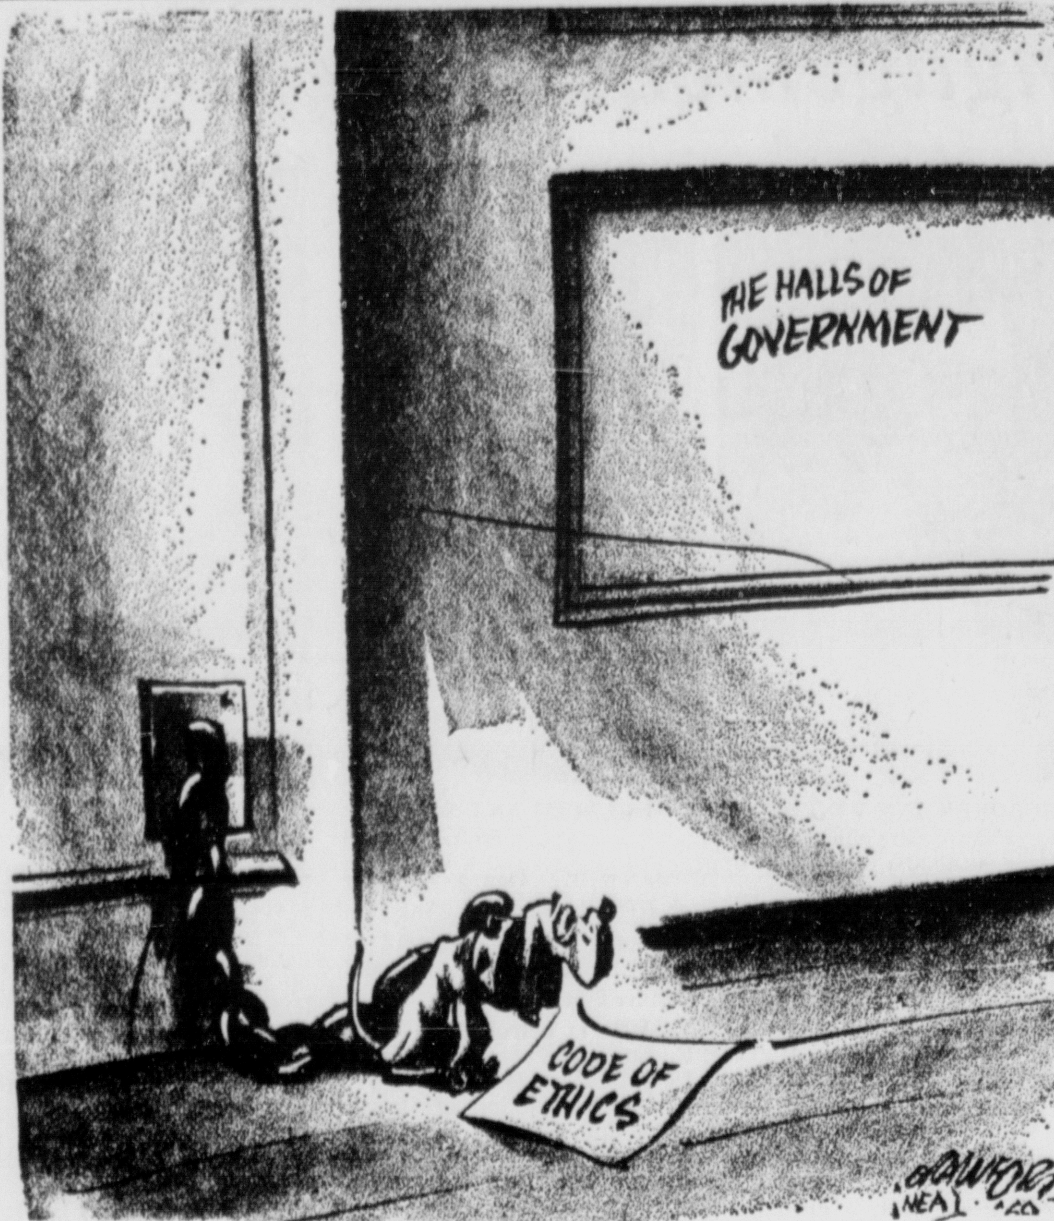

Nova Scotia upped its sales tax from 5 to 7 per cent and also ended the exemption for automobiles and parts, electricity and local telephone calls. The tax on liquor was raised by 10 per cent and that on cigarettes quadrupled.

In Alberta, the personal income tax jumped from 28 to 33 per cent and tobacco is now being taxed for the first time—as much as 20 per cent.

Owners of minerals in nonproducing areas of Saskatchewan now must pay 10 cents per acre instead of 3 cents.

Tax prospects in the other provinces don't look very promising, either, says the CCH.

The 30 seniors of Owensboro Catholic High School in Kentucky, who made a 180-mile relay jog as a protest against campus disorders, bore an American flag over the full distance. It was their symbol that their protest was patriotic as well as peaceful. They made their point the country over, as word of their jog flew across the press service wires.

Don't Tinker With Tax Exemption Law for Charity

WASHINGTON — When Congress starts tinkering with laws affecting charitable contributions, the emphasis is always on the rich man who gets big tax deduction. But the harm that can be done to the poor and disadvantaged people of America could conceivably be extensive. It is all right to stop the manipulation of non-profit foundations which get tax exemptions, and it certainly is wise to spell out what they may or may not do in the field of public affairs. The fact remains, however, that most of the foundations and other tax-exempt organizations are doing worthwhile things for millions of human beings. To curtail the flow of money into charity would do serious injury, and would in the end result in all citizens having to pay higher taxes in order to finance more and more government programs to help the needy.

It is unquestionably desirable for Congress to pass what the House Ways and Means Committee has just recommended with respect to improper activities of some non-profit, tax-exempt foundations or organizations. Thus, the ending of tax exemptions for money that is spent directly or indirectly to influence elections or to affect the decisions of any governmental agencies is a sound recommendation, and deductions should be defined carefully so that donors would not be involved in investments in stocks or bonds held by a foundation which might have a bearing on the value of their own securities.

What would prove harmful, however, is any limitation on the incentives which today cause very large contributions to be made to religious, educational or charitable institutions. Thus, for instance, one of the proposals before the House Ways and Means Committee would repeal the special provision which gives certain donors a tax deduction beyond the normal 30 per cent of taxable income. This has heretofore permitted big contributions of property, for example, which had appreciated in value.

Many churches and other worthy charities have been given various articles which can be immediately sold at a higher value than they cost the donors. Gifts of works of art and other properties, including stocks and bonds, have hitherto been received by charitable organizations, and deductions have been allowed the donor.

A citizen may have bought a piece of property for 10 thousand dollars, and when he gave it away 20 years later, it might be worth 70,000 dollars. Tax deductions are given at the actual value at the time the gift is made. But if certain proposals before the House Committee are adopted, the allowance for the full deduction by persons who regularly make such large-sized donations would be materially reduced. Hence, one of the biggest incentives for donations of private property to charity would be dealt a damaging blow.

What would the net result be? The government of the United States—which means taxpayers of low as well as high income—would have to pay more money into the U.S. Treasury to help meet those needs of the people which have hitherto been taken care of by charitable institutions.

Latest figures show that more than 15.8 billion dollars was given in 1968 to colleges, universities, hospitals and other charitable causes. Individuals donated 12.1 billions, while 1.3 billions were from bequests in the estates of individuals. Grants from philanthropic foundations totaled 1.5 billion dollars, and corporations gave 925 million dollars.

It is, on the other hand, impossible to estimate the total actually given to charity by the American people, because many of the contributions are in the form of volunteer service. During 1968, more than 30.5 million persons—men, women and young people—engaged in such work in various institutions.

If some of the proposals announced by the House Ways and Means Committee should become law, it will be the first time that Congress will have passed legislation that actually discourages some of the large donations for humanitarian purposes.

The House committee has not yet made final proposals but has outlined in technical terms certain recommendations it has under consideration. Many of them are meritorious. But if the operations of charitable institutions are in any way hurt, the expenditures by government for social welfare would have to be substantially increased. All taxpayers then would have to shoulder a heavier burden.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The police report is terse: "Defendant referred to State Hospital by Circuit Court." She was — if looks have meaning — a shy old lady. She was about the size of a sixth-grade child with china blue eyes. She walked bent slightly forward, usually with one wrist clasping the other, the purse bouncing between them.

Her name was Clara Burger and she lived on the fourth floor rear of a tenement. The two windows in the kitchen framed a view of clotheslines and the red-bricked backs of other tenements. Sometimes boys fought in the yard and Mrs. Burger held her hands against her ears against the noise of violence.

Herman said he liked women with long hair, so Clara never cut it. Once in a long while, if she had a few extra dollars, she would walk silently and swiftly to a beauty shop to have the ends cut. She never had a permanent wave, and refused to dye her hair, even when it reached a shade that was neither white nor black, nor even gray. It was like Brillo.

The neighbors did not know the Burgers. Sometimes, Mrs. Burger would smile at a child. Her day consisted of going to the store, and coming home. Herman worked the docks. If he showed up, he might get a day's work. If he didn't, he lost the day.

He was a big mite, a man who came home at night and kicked his shoes off and settled on a couch to watch television and rub his sox made the supper on a kitchen against each other. Clara coal stove. They had been married 37 years, but there was little to discuss.

Herman turned his salary over to his wife and sometimes, if he remembered, he bent down and kissed her tenderly on the way out, and less frequently, on the way in. A long time ago, she spoke of having children. She spoke of Mr. Burger didn't care one way or another.

They were married four years when Clara realized that she was not his wife. She was his mother. He refused to permit her to put the light out when they went to bed. "The dark," he said, "I don't know; it makes me nervous." The bedroom was just off the kitchen, so Clara kept the swinging electric bulb lit all the time.

On days when Herman didn't make the shapeup, he did not want the bedroom to be dark. Clara pacified him. On those days, he didn't want her to leave the little flat. "Why go to the store?" he would say. "Cook some leftovers."

She was neat and thrifty and she kept all their savings in cash. Dollar by dollar, it piled up in a broken wall of the broom closet. At night, she would draw a chair close to the couch and watch television with Herman. Sometimes, the giant dozed, and Clara rubbed his hand or caressed his forehead.

One day last winter she walked mouselike down the street and into a tavern. The barstools were high and she used a rung to get up. "I would like to have whiskey, please," she said to the bartender. He was busy working out a two-horse parlay. "What kind, lady?" he said. Mrs. Burger smiled brightly. "How many are there?" she said.

The bartender frowned. "Don't you know what you want?" he said. She was afraid of offending him. "Oh," she said gaily, "anything will do. Anything." He poured a shot over a cube of ice in a tall glass. "You want anything with it?" he said. She shook her head no.

Mrs. Burger drank it and choked. She ordered another. And another. The china blue of the eyes began to come alive. She paid for the drinks and took the change. That evening, she was back at the bar. It was crowded but she found a place to stand and awaited her turn.

It was a few weeks before Spring when she fell on the third flight of stairs and the janitor came up. He was not one to judge. "There Mrs. Burger," he said. "I'll help you up. Take my arm."

She collapsed on the kitchen couch. The janitor saw that the bedroom light was on, so he peeked around the corner. He hurried out and in ten minutes he was back with two policemen.

Herman was in the bed. The quilt was tucked under his chin. He had been dead four months. They carried Clara out. "Please," she begged. "Please don't put the light on." The police blotter says: "Defendant referred to State Hospital by Circuit Court...."

Postage to Go Up 12 Cents Under P. O. Reorganization

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Winton Blount has acknowledged cautiously to Republican congressional leaders that his plan to revamp the postal system probably would increase first-class postage to 12 cents.

Under his plan, mail rates would be set by an independent commission. However, the new postal authority would be required to show a balanced budget within five years.

Pennsylvania's Rep. Bob Corbett, the top Republican on the House Post Office Committee, suggested that other government agencies should pay more for their now cut-rate mailing privileges. He suggested a complete revision of the franking system as one way to help balance the postal budget without increasing first-class rates.

Blount pointed out that the postal payments from other government agencies are not figured by the pound or the piece, but are determined by negotiation. It might cost more, he cautioned, to start counting or weighing government mail. There was opposition inside the post office, he said, to changing the franking system.

President Nixon spoke up for the postal workers at the closed-door meeting. In reforming the postal service, he urged, "The postal worker cannot be made to feel that he is a second-class citizen. Any postal reforms should be so structured as to be on the side of the workers."

The President suggested that the postal workers would back reforms if they "don't have to take up every grievance with Congress."

Corbett agreed that the postal workers "ought to be called in and consulted."

Blount noted that his reforms call for collective bargaining, which ought to improve the postal workers' lot. He pointed out that collective bargaining had given TVA workers "the best wage rates and fringe benefits" in government.

Postal workers have been demanding "comparability"—which means a wage scale based on comparable rates in industry. They understood that Blount was against this idea.

However, he told the Republican legislative chiefs surprisingly: "I favor the principle of comparability, but it would have to be carefully formulated."

Fish Are Fickle

The whims of fish, particularly herring, have drastically affected the economy of two countries and their relations with the United States. They are Iceland, which has been spurned by the herring but has not spurned the United States; and Peru, which is not spurned by the herring but has spurned the United States. In fact, Peru has seized three American vessels fishing in the heavy fish run well outside the international 12-mile limit.

While the United States continued an American military mission in Peru until it was kicked out his week and is still continuing favorable sugar quotas to Peru, the United States has treated friendly Iceland like a poor relative.

Iceland, a strategic island in the North Atlantic essential to the United States as a NATO base, has remained extremely loyal to the USA and NATO. 1966 was a big year for the herring run. Iceland prospered. The next year, however, the herring moved away. Most of the run went to Spitzbergen. Some fishermen claim that part of the herring also sneaked around Cape Horn to Peru.

At any rate, the economy of Iceland has dropped tragically in the last three years. Added to its woes is the civil war in Nigeria, one of its biggest markets for fish. All in all, exports have decreased 45 per cent in 24 months, the largest drop suffered by any country in the world.

Despite this and despite strong ties with the United States, Washington has done nothing to bolster Iceland's economy. And a penny pinching Congress is almost certain to scale down the foreign aid budget even further.

Paris in the Springtime

There's a famous song which a bevy of Congressmen must be singing, "I Love Paris in the Springtime."

At any rate, at least 14 House members—eight from the Armed Services Committee and six from the Space Committee—are there right now at taxpayers' expense to attend the annual International Air Show in Paris.

The only one who is paying his own way is Rep. William Bray, R-Ind., who is seeing the show—an exhibition of the latest aircraft of many nations—in company with his wife.

The others are flying free on an Air Force plane and stopping for a week at the finest hotels in Paris, with all expenses paid by you-know-who. They are:

Reps. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, George Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the Space Committee, Philip Philbin, D-Mass., Mel Price, D-Ill., Bray, Charles Gubser, R-Calif., Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., William Dickinson, R-Ala., Ed Foreman, R-N.M.

Also James Fulton, R-Pa., Larry Winn, R-Kans., Bertram Podell, D-N.Y., Robert Price, R-Tex., and Edward Koch, D-N.Y.

At least one thing is better this year than in 1967. That year Chairman Mendel Rivers, author of the Draft Act, was so anxious to get to Paris that he allowed only two hours of debate on a bill affecting the lives of millions of young men. He wanted to fly to Paris next morning.

The General Patton Movie

MADRID. — A magnificent American motion picture is capturing here and in North Africa the life and times of the greatest field commander of World War II — brilliant, irascible, indomitable Gen. George S. Patton Jr.

Between August 1, 1944, and May 9, 1945, Patton's U.S. Third Army liberated 12,000 cities and communities, marched 1,225 miles in 291 days of combat, crossed 24 major rivers, captured 81,500 square miles of territory and took more Nazi prisoners than took any other single army in the war. Beyond this, Patton was the first man since 1100 to conquer the brooding Metz fortress.

Many have compared Patton with the J.E.B. Stuarts, the Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson, the Nathan Bedford Forrests, the German Marshal Erwin Rommel whom he finally defeated those fantastic, individualistic personalities who changed field generalship into nearly a personal combat.

But Patton—with his flaming anger; his glaring moments of inspired leadership and then of human weakness; his outrageous blasphemy and then his genuine tenderness—holds a fascination that is entirely his own.

Last fall five-star Gen. Omar N. Bradley came abroad and staked out for producer Frank McCarthy, himself a distinguished wartime aide to Gen. George C. Marshall, the battlefield assimilations of the various Patton campaigns. As intimates of the controversial commander, Bradley and McCarthy each have told me that this was a labor of love. And, for my own part, the Patton I knew in both his triumphs and disasters handsomely deserves it.

Bradley and McCarthy chose the forest outside Segovia, Spain, to serve as the snow-covered forests of the Ardennes, the scene of the alarming Battle of the Bulge where, at Bastogne, defending and overwhelmed Brig. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe shouted his famous "Nuts!" to the German commander's demand for his surrender and where Patton relieved Bastogne by one of the most daring maneuvers in the whole history of war.

They chose the barren stretches in Spain's Almeria region to stand in for Sicily. They chose the Pamplona area for Patton's race across France and Germany. Then they moved through Patton's North African terrain to recreate the battles of the Kasserine Pass, El Guettar and the Sicily invasion. They chose Marrakech, Morocco, and the capital at Rabat for the parade of 10,000 of the world's most gaudily bedecked horsemen, who parade in review after Patton's decoration by the Moroccan sultan for liberating his country. And in all this the American logistic problems that Bradley and McCarthy encountered were enormous.

The scene of Patton entering Palermo, Sicily, is involving 3,600 soldiers and civilians. It was necessary to make the immense film in Spain because authentic World War II equipment was not available elsewhere nor had any other army except the Spanish army the personnel to run it. For example, the Spanish command has allocated 200 tanks to the production and is clearly delighted to be conducting maneuvers in the pattern of Patton, the master tactician in armored warfare.

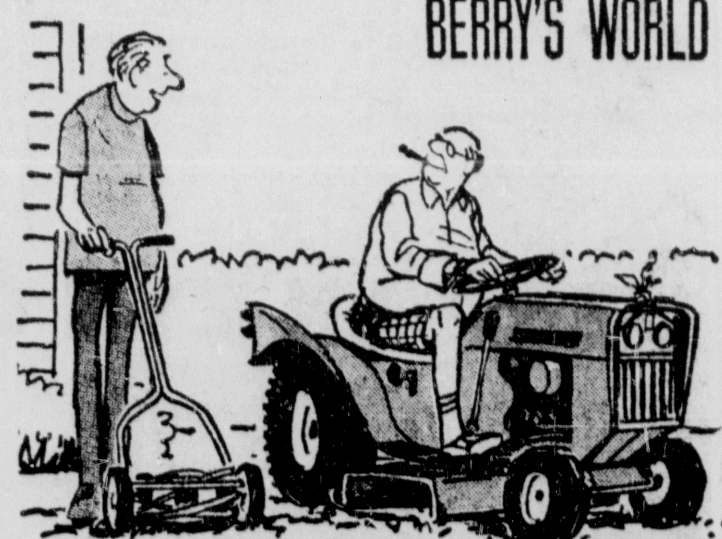

A vast outdoor film in full color on these dimensions is an amazing thing to see produced and the scope of the daily operational problems, to say nothing of the language difficulty, is appalling. But Bradley and McCarthy seem unaffected by these. Their picture is, in fact, much more the story of the innards, the hopes, the fears, the frustrations, the triumphs and collapses of this fated and near-mystical man.

General Bradley had some reservations about accepting Patton as commander of the Third Army in his XII Army group in France when General Marshall ordered him to reverse the roles they had in North Africa and Sicily, where Bradley was Patton's subordinate. He was wary of Patton's fractious character. But under the sympathetic eye of General Eisenhower, both fine men made the nearly unprecedented promotion-demotion between themselves with great success when many doubters thought this totally impossible.

Hardly realized by our country, the success of this change from subordination to command, loaded with personal equations, was probably the outstanding personal triumph by any two American leaders in the entire war.

Bradley showed his greatness by the prudent way he went about it. Irascible Patton, far senior to Bradley, showed his greatness by the way that he accepted it.

"Next year, I'm going to buy one of those, so I have more time for jogging, too!"

TEEN SCENE: The Summer for Winter Blues

By LEI

He sings blues. His blues are black. But Johnny Winter is white. Very white. Even his shoulder-length hair is white. His eyes are pink, and crossed. His nose is hooked, and his neck seems as long as the rest of his skinny frame. He looks like the unlikely progeny of Tiny Tim and Jean Harlow. Johnny Winter is an albino. An albino blues singer. Once you hear him, you forget he's an albino. But you'll never forget he's a blues singer. And he plays what the mag "Rolling Stone" called "the gutsiest fluid blues guitar you've ever heard."

That story in Rolling Stone last December led to Winter's big gig at Fillmore East, stories in mass media, and "instant success." That "instant success" came after 25 years of effort and six months in the sun. Through it all, Winter and the blues have been true.

Plantation Start

Like his idols, the great black blues singers such as Muddy Waters, Johnny Winter grew up making music on a cotton plantation with his kid brother Edgar, and parents. The difference was, Johnny's father owned the plantation. For awhile, anyway. But it didn't pan out, or fleece up, or whatever cotton plantations are supposed to do.

The plantation was in Texas, where Winter was born in Beaumont on Feb. 23, 1944. His father played sax and banjo, and his mother played the piano. On Johnny's album, his father is listed on the back as the alto man, and from the photo, it would appear that he also is an albino. The older Winter taught his son the ukelele at eight years old, and the guitar as soon as the kid was big enough to hold one. On the way, Johnny learned a lot about mouth harps and cool riffs. And an awful lot about the blues. He wrapped it all up to give to his audiences.

He and Edgar were playing them early. While still in high school they formed several groups—It and Them, Johnny Winter and the Black Plague. Johnny tried college, but it tried him too. His head was full of blue sound, and he hitchhiked up to Chicago to spread it around.

Chicago Blues

It was the wrong place, the wrong time. It was 1962, and only a few souls ahead of their times were buying blues. One was a fellow called Mike Bloomfield, who was running a place called the Fickle Pickle. Winter crashed there and played for a few weeks, but Chicago was giving him more blues than he was giving it. So he stuck his mouth harp in his hip pocket, gave back his borrowed axe, and headed back to Texas.

He toured the South with an entertainment troupe. He learned to play any type of music on request in dingy clubs and theaters. He learned to face an audience that had come to snicker at the scrawny little freak, and send them away to tell everyone that that scrawny little blues singer could blow good sound. Out in those audiences were people who counted. People who got that front page spread into Rolling Stone.

Summer in East

Which got him into Fillmore East at two one morning when he made the dawn come early. And then the sun rose for a year that's all Winter, and that's no snow.

Johnny Winter who worked 25 years becoming an overnight sensation has two Columbia albums that are selling like antifreeze on a winter day. And Winter's reaction? "I'm gassed to find people digging blues." He hopes his record will introduce blues to new ears, and that his success will boost the great blues cats—the Howlin' Wolves and Muddy Waters.

The blues are over for Johnny Winter. For his listeners, the blues—and he—have definitely arrived.

Summer Center Set At 'Second Story'

KINGSTON The story of the Second Story is about to unfold.

For the past month 25 teens from Kingston and Coleman High Schools have been planning a summer center based at the local YMCA and called The Second Story.

The first chapter will be an open house on June 13 to give everyone a chance to see what the center will be like. Hours and entertainment for the opening are being worked out by the youth committee. Under the leadership of Sandy Thompson, president and Joan Federman, secretary-treasurer, the committee has set rules and policies by which the center will operate.

The purpose of The Second Story is to give those in this year's ninth through 12th grade students a place to go this summer.

The Youth Lobby of the YMCA will be the main area for the center, and includes pool and ping pong tables, cards, checkers, chess, and other adult board games, as well as a free juke box for dancing or listening. Soda and candy machines for refreshments.

The center will be what the members make it: A place to go. A place to meet. A place to plan bigger and better things. A place to do nothing but stay off the street.

John Bailey, a teacher at KHS, and James Lapak, physical director at the 'Y', will direct the center and serve as advisors to the group in any activities that they may plan, such as summer trips to New York City, or other places of interest.

During the summer, the center will be open Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights from 7-10 p.m. and Saturday night from 7:30-11:30 p.m.

Too often the cry is "But there is nothing to do, and nowhere to go." This center is the YMCA's proposed solution, but the answer to this problem will be up to the youth who join the center, and make something of it!

Adult Looks at Today And Colors It Bright

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Dr. James E. Allen, U.S. commissioner of education, says college students today are capable, bright, knowledgeable and "know more than any generation."

I have noticed the same thing myself.

In my generation, students enrolled in college with the expectation that they would meet someone there who knew more than they did. Like maybe a professor.

If the professor who knew more than the student then imparted some of his knowledge to the student, the student would learn something. This was called education.

That concept, as we are now aware, is rapidly becoming outdated.

By the time they are ready to attend college, many of today's students have passed the stage of merely learning something. Now they are ready to run the college as well.

This is a truly remarkable advancement. Time was when a person had to graduate, obtain several advanced degrees and acquire some administrative experience before he was ready to run a college.

To what do we owe the academic acceleration under which a student becomes ready to run a college while he is still a freshman, or a sophomore or the latest?

Someone adept at jumping to conclusions might give the credit to the high schools. But if you have spent any time hanging around high schools lately, you recognize that such confidence is misplaced.

It may therefore be reasoned that the credit rightly belongs to the parents of the students.

Students, of course, will hoot at this assertion. Students insist on putting down their parents as hopelessly square, excessively materialistic and hung up on middle-class morality.

In short, students are unwilling to concede that anything good might come from their parents.

Yet the evidence is clear: No other generation in history has begotten offspring who were ready to run large universities at the age of 20.

If my generation is as retarded as students and psychologists who write articles for household magazines contend, then how were we able to sire such brilliant precocious children?

I submit that no generation capable of propagating today's college students can be all bad.

Swan Songs at Hobbit

KINGSTON

Next Friday night the Hobbit Coffeehouse in the basement of the Fair Street Reformed Church will be the scene of one of the last concerts to be given by the popular group of singing seminarians, the Collarmen. Several of the fathers are leaving the area, and the group is breaking up, so this will be the last opportunity for their many Kingston fans to hear this group.

The concert will take place on the Hobbit stage Friday night only, with the first show beginning at 8 p.m.

Local Discoveries

Saturday night, the entertainment will feature two talented young Hobbit discoveries, Kathy Lamb and Jan Christensen.

Both have done professional folk singing outside of this area, but this will be their first appearance in Kingston. Kathy Lamb has been a helper of the Hobbit since its beginning, as has Jan Christensen. They both participated in the recent local talent night, and after their auditions, they were booked into the first opening, next Saturday night, June 7.

Incidentally, tonight and every Saturday night from 6 to 7:30 there are auditions at the coffeehouse, with free admission for performers and listeners. Anyone in the area who makes music, whether folk, rock, jazz, country, or pop come by and audition.

Tonight's Fare

The Memorial weekend show at the Hobbit is featuring the ever popular Kinsmen. There is still time to catch their Saturday night special starting at 8 p.m. Their ad-lib humor and distinctive style have made the trio of local college students coffeehouse favorites.

There is still promise of the unplanned jam session in the Hobbit's near future. Rumor has it that the spectacular could happen any weekend now.

The impromptu session is expected to include top name Woodstock folk singers as well as members of the Paul Butterfield Blues Band, The Group from The Pink, and Fear Itself.

Just keep watching and listening.

Teen Filmsters Hit Touring Trail Again

KINGSTON

With Memorial weekend half over, can summer be far behind?

Certainly not if plans announced this week are any indication. The Teen Summer Program sponsored by the Jewish Community Center swing into motion under the direction of Donn and Mary Ann Avellone according to word received from Alfred Rose, center president. Even more activities and trips are scheduled this summer for teen participants.

The program will be conducted for a six week period from July 7 through August 15 five days per week for boys and girls entering eighth, ninth and tenth grades in the fall. The season is divided into two three week periods and registration may be either for the full season or either period.

Donn Avellone is in the social studies department of the Clifford Miller School, while his wife, Mary Ann teaches biology at the same school, both having taught at J. Watson Bailey previously. Donn will be teaching at Kingston High School next season. Both are returning as directors of the teen program after having served in the same capacity last year.

The program offers a wide variety to the participants featuring daily trips to places of interest and special events and a three or four day trip to an area of interest each period.

Last year the major trips were to a Dude Ranch, while this year possibilities include the Mystic Seaport area, Provincetown on Cape Cod, and a Dude Ranch. Plans call for trips to the Saratoga Performing Arts Festival, Woodstock Playhouse for folk music program and musical show, Rye Beach, Tanglewood, Palisades Amusement Park, Lake Mohonk, Jacob's Pillow, Woodstock Library Fair, among others.

Once again, a feature of the program will be the production of a movie taken while participating on the trips.

Also featured this year will be a weekly morning class in ceramics and/or woodworking and/or weaving under outstanding instruction in Woodstock.

The program is open to all boys and girls as mentioned above, on a non-sectarian basis. Membership in the Jewish Community Center is not required. Further information and registration forms are available at the Jewish Community Center, 96 Maiden Lane, Kingston.

Local Youth Clicks With Camera On Campus; Heads for Home Scene

PHOTOGRAPHER JON FOX

WEST HURLEY "Shutter bug infection" is taking on career proportions for a local youth.

John Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Fox of West Hurley, has had a good opportunity to pursue his favorite hobby of photography while a freshman this year at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va. His summer plans include more of the same only at home base.

As a student assistant in the information office of the college, he has taken pictures of a wide variety of events on campus and has seen his work used in news releases sent out by the office.

Recently the Newport News Daily Press used a full page of pictures taken by Jon. The picture story described a picnic given by students of Circle K and Alpha Phi Omega for underprivileged children in the area.

The new College catalogue contains pictures by Jon and the Newport News Times-Herald recently used several of his pictures to illustrate a feature page about his photographic skill. He has also taken pictures for the College yearbook, The Colonial Echo. Several character portraits, including pictures of his mother and father, appeared in the college literary magazine, The William and Mary Review. His father, incidentally, is well known around the Rhinebeck Aerodrome as the Red Baron, flying simulated dog fights in restored World War I vintage aircraft. Fox and Cole Palen have appeared on television in connection with their consuming interest in aviation history and glory of those early flying aces.

Jon plans a summer of picture taking and hopes a national magazine which has shown interest in his work will be enthusiastic about using his prints when he finishes his summer project in Woodstock.

Jon first started snapping pictures several years ago on a trip to New England with his family. He took a 35 millimeter camera and a light meter with him when he went to Europe three summers ago as his interest in photography grew.

As a junior in Oteora High School, Boiceville, he continued to experiment with photography and did some work for the high school annual.

A self styled "realist" with a camera, Jon has experimented with series from life and has taken trips to New York and Richmond to get portraits of city life. He has also used special lighting and developing techniques to heighten the realism of his pictures.

A fine arts major at the College of William and Mary, Jon is a member of the William and Mary Choir and recently went on tour with that group—both to sing and take pictures.

New Paltz Nine Clinches Tie for UCAL Pennant

Bob Lynch and Hal Anderson hammered back-to-back homers in the six-run, sixth inning for New Paltz, as the Huguenots clinched a tie for the championship of the Ulster County Athletic League Thursday with an 11-2 win over Highland. The winners are now 8-3 in League play.

In other UCAL games, Onteora spoiled Rondout's chances to remain tied for the number one spot, dumping the host squad, 3-0. Marlboro finished the season with an 11-0 rout of visiting Pine Bush.

The title could be decided Monday at Rondout, when New Paltz comes in for the final regular season game with the Ganders. Coach Hal Ross' boys are still in the thick of things as a win over the visitors would tie the two clubs, forcing a playoff. Rondout is 7-4 in League play.

Rapid Ray Zappone was again the winning pitcher for New Paltz, as he turned in one of his usual fine performances, striking out 12, walking four and allowing three hits.

The only one of the Highlanders to do any damage to Zappone, was Tony Biancardi, hard-hitting shortstop, who clobbered a two-run circuit clout in the fifth stanza.

The outcome was still in doubt until the six-run barrage in the top half of the sixth. The score at the end of the fifth was 4-2, favor of New Paltz. Then the roof fell in as Anderson and Lynch unloaded the heavy artillery. Lynch also had a triple to go with his homer. Bill Bond also added a three-bagger in the second inning to drive in Tony Zagorini.

Smith Stars
Jim Smith smashed the Ganders by himself as he clouted for the circuit twice, the first one coming in the second and the second coming in the fifth. Smith's shots weren't of the cheap variety as they cleared the playing area both times.

Onteora tallied in the first stanza as Bob Leyes got on via the error route and came home on Allan Cock's single.

Ed Mercer provided some fine pitching as he held the second-place Ganders to two hits. Mercer struck out five and walked one to defeat Freshman counterpart Hyler Van Wagenen.

Marlboro ended its season in fine style, polishing off the Bushmen, 11-0. The Dukes exploded for 16 hits in the seven inning stint.

Dale Sutton came on like a one-man gang for the winners, as he handled the pitching chores, hurling a two-hitter and

NEW YORK (UPI)—Majestic Prince, winner of both the Kentucky Derby and Preakness Stakes, will run 1 1/2 miles Sunday morning in his final workout for the Belmont Stakes June 7.

Majestic Prince was out on the Belmont track Friday morning, but just galloped once around the course.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals acquired outfielder Vic Davalillo from the California Angels Friday in exchange for outfielder Jim Hicks.

Davalillo was hitting .155 in 33 games for the Angels this season while Hicks posted a .183 batting average in 19 games.

Andretti, Granatelli and Substitute Car Win 500

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Andretti drove the second-choice racer to a runaway triumph Friday at a record speed of 156.867 miles an hour. "I prayed those last 150 miles," Andretti said. "So many things have happened to me here."

The jubilant winner finished five miles ahead of his closest rival as he sped to the first Indy 500.

Granatelli, who saw his 5-foot-6 Andretti wheeled onto the black-and-white checkered carpet in victory lane where Granatelli—not the beautiful queen—kissed him—not just once but three times.

"He said I'm a sloppy kisser," Granatelli said. Andretti, 29, who has been racing more than half his life, hadn't planned to drive the swift substitute racer until he smashed his new car into a wall in a fiery wreck in practice last week.

"I figured we blew it right there," he said. But the gutsy driver was back on the track the very next day in a backup car he had used in previous races this season. "It was like old home week," Andretti said, as man and machine meshed perfectly.

Andretti won a front-row starting spot in qualifications, then zipped into the lead on the first turn of the first lap Friday before an overheating problem forced him to drop back slightly.

Halfway through the race veteran Lloyd Ruby broke his fuel rod circuit when he was only in a freak accident when he tried to pull out of the pits too soon and suddenly Andretti was left all alone in the lead, with no one close to him.

With only 150 miles to go, Andretti suddenly went into a sideways slide on a backstretch turn. He said sheepishly, "I got caught napping." But he pulled Pa., finished third in his first out of it and, going slower and slower as the finish came near, cruised to victory.

Dan Gurney was second and the defending champ, Bobby Unser, wound up third.

An estimated $200,000 will be awarded at tonight's victory dinner to the diminutive driver, who began racing on Italian road circuits when he was only 13.

In those days Andretti had to sneak away from home to race. He didn't tell his parents. Once, when he banged up his knee in a crash in the rain, he told them he had hurt it in a fall on the steps of a church.

Powell Runs Streak to 18, Yanks Take KC Doubleheader

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rattling rival pitchers became easier for big Boog Powell than shaking teammate Brooks Robinson.

Powell ran his hitting streak to 18 games with a two-run homer Friday night and — for the third time this week—Robinson followed with another homer as the Baltimore Orioles rallied for a 3-1 victory over California.

Powell and Robinson, who had hit successive homers last Sunday at Oakland and Wednesday night at Seattle, connected in the seventh inning against winless Angel Andy Messersmith, carrying the Orioles from behind to their 12th victory in 14 games.

Elsewhere in American League holiday action, Boston nipped Minnesota 3-2; Detroit cuffed Seattle 8-5; New York swept a doubleheader from Kansas City 6-2 and 5-4 in 15 innings; Chicago beat Washington 8-5 after a 5-4, 10-inning loss; Oakland split with Cleveland, bowing 9-2 before taking the nightcap 5-1.

Peterson Stars
Fritz Peterson pitched a five-hitter, Bobby Murcer smacked a homer, double and single and Roy White contributed a two-run triple in the Yankees' opening game victory at Kansas by rookie catcher Ed Herrmann.

15 Innings
New York broke a 3-3 tie in the 15th inning of the nightcap on RBI singles by Jerry Kenney and White, then survived Mike Fio's run-producing double in the bottom half.

Bobby Knoop, who started the day with one home run and a 179 batting mark, wasted two homers as the White Sox dropped their opener at Washington, then slammed a decisive three-run homer in the sixth inning of the nightcap.

The Senators snapped a 10th inning deadlock in the first game when Mike Epstein scored from second on a throwing error

ing game victory at Kansas by rookie catcher Ed Herrmann.

Mets, Seaver Top Giants, 4-3

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Although he meant well, Mike McCormick made the same mistake as Phil Niekro. He tried to pitch a no-hitter against Tom Seaver and the New York Mets.

Pittsburgh also looked good pulling off a triple play on Houston's Johnny Edwards, but that too returned to haunt them when a more determined Edwards came back to beat them.

Just over two weeks ago, Niekro of Atlanta made his bid, holding the Mets hitless for six innings with a 3-0 lead before a triple and a single got the Mets on the board. They went on to knock him out with eight runs in the eighth inning for a victory after Seaver had left for a pinch hitter.

Swohoda Homers
Now along comes McCormick and San Francisco rolling along with a 3-0 lead and a no-hitter Friday night before Ron Swohoda homered for the Mets to lead off the seventh.

When Seaver again left for a pinch hitter in the eighth, the handwriting was on the wall, and the Mets rallied this time for three runs and a 4-3 victory over the Giants.

Pittsburgh was losing 3-1 in the first game if its doubleheader against the Astros when Edwards ruined Houston in the fourth inning by hitting into a triple play. The Pirates went on to grab a 9-3 victory, ending the Astros' 10-game winning streak.

But Edwards shrugged off his misfortune and came back with a tie-breaking two-run, ninth-inning single in the nightcap to give Houston a 9-6 triumph.

In other Memorial Day games, San Diego saddled Montreal with its 14th straight defeat, 3-2 in 10 innings, Cincinnati nipped St. Louis 4-3 in 10 innings, Bill Hands and the Chicago Cubs edged Atlanta 2-0 and Philadelphia blasted Los Angeles 13-6.

In the American League, the New York Yankees swept Kansas City 6-2 and 5-4 in 15 innings, Cleveland beat Oakland 9-2 before losing 5-1, the Chicago White Sox outslug Washington 8-5 after losing 5-4 in 10 innings, Boston edged Minnesota 3-2, Detroit topped Seattle 8-5 and Baltimore stopped California 3-1.

McCovey Hits 14th
Willie McCovey's 14th homer and sacrifice fly had given the Giants their lead, but McCormick couldn't hang on. Rod Gaspar lined his first major league homer with two out in the eighth and when Tommie Agee followed with a single, Frank Linzy relieved.

Hits by Cleon Jones and Swohoda tied the game and rookie Duffy Dyer's infield hit sent home the winner.

"That's the second time in my last three victories that I've been on the bench when we scored," said Seaver, who gave only four hits in raising his record to 7-3.

Edwards hit a routine ground-er to first base with runners on first and second and first baseman Al Oliver retired him unassisted, then tagged one runner in a rundown between first and second and threw to third base, getting the other runner rounding the bag.

3-for-6
Bill Mazaroski and Matty Alou, with six hits apiece in the twinning, each singled in a run in Pittsburgh's fourth and Rich Hebner's sacrifice fly put the Pirates ahead.

In the ninth inning of the nightcap Denis Menke singled, Doug Rader doubled and Gary Geiger was walked intentionally before Edwards delivered with one out. He later scored on a force out.

"Everytime I looked up someone else was being tagged out," Sure, I'm sorry we lost the first game, but the important thing is that we came back."

Star Rockette Home First In Memorial Day Feature

MONTICELLO, N. Y., May 30 — Jim Grundy took Star Rockette to the top in the stretch to capture Monticello Raceway's Memorial Day feature free-for-all trot, carrying a purse of $4,000, and completed the mile in 2:04.1 to win by three lengths.

Grundy kept Star Rockette in the field throughout most of the trot, contenting himself with the third or fourth hole. Then as the pack came out of the paddock turn, Star Rockette took the lead commandingly never to relinquish it. This marks the third victory in 1969 for the 5-year-old mare, whose lineage is Little Rocky — Queens Attorney by Attorney. In six starts, she has three wins and one third.

The pace for the trot was set by Be Special, who was alternately challenged by Sprint and Nevele Song. While Be Special was heading the pack, he set fractional times of :30 flat for the quarter; 1:01.1 for the half; and 1:32 for the three-quarters. Be Special broke in the paddock turn, thereby insuring Star Rockette's victory. Place position was taken by Sprint, Clark Malady the driver, and the show horse was Happy Newport, Randolph Perry driving.

The daily double at the Mighty M linked Blazing in the first race with Melody Fly in the second to produce a 5 and 4 combination netting two dollar ticket holders $64.80. Both events were paces over the mile distance.

Blazing, a four-year-old son of Blaze Hanover — Lanice Hanover had Davies Boushard in the sulky who took his charge in a homestretch brush to beat out Georges Jewel, Al Burton driving, by a neck at the wire. Show horse was Blaze Painter, D. Goodman the driver, Blazing paced the mile in 2:06.1.

Melody Fly, a six-year-old horse by Dragon Fly — Saida, was driven by his trainer, George Montgomery. In completing the mile in 2:07.3, Melody Fly bested Libby Rainbow, who placed with Kenneth Heene in the sulky, and Carol Lenawee, with Davies Boushard, showed. In the second race, Quality Inn, who had been assigned post position 6, was a late scratch.

Ferraro Shifted To Second

Mike Ferraro raised his batting average 58 points in the last three games with a 6 for 12 performance. Mike is now batting .275.

After going 7-14 in the first three games with Rochester, Ferraro went into a slump of 3 for 32, but he came out of it this week.

Farley Athletic Director

Ingarra Pulls Up Stakes And Heads for Southland

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINECLIFF — A distinguished member of the prep school coaching profession has decided to pull up stakes and take his chances in sunny Florida.

Joseph F. Ingarra, outstanding Cardinal Farley Military Academy Physical Education Director for the past five years, says that "I haven't got my next job nailed down yet, but it will be in either Palm Beach, Brevard, or Dade county in Florida."

Ingarra has coached football, wrestling, and baseball at Cardinal Farley since 1964, and held a similar position at Iona Prep in New Rochelle from 1959 to 1964. Iona Prep is another of the Christian Brothers' run schools.

His first love is football. The New York Journal-American named him "Coach of the Year" in 1962, and the Poughkeepsie Journal accorded him the same honor for Dutchess County in 1964. Ingarra was an assistant football coach at Sewanhake High School in Floral Park, L.I. in the late 1940s; was an assistant coach at Chaminade High School, Mineola, L. I. 1957-58; and assistant coach at Iona Prep 1960-62 before attaining head coach status.

semi-professional outfit as an outfielder and catcher.

"My certificate to coach in Florida has just arrived," said the coach. "My wife, Doris, who is teaching in the Red Hook elementary grades, will find an other teaching job in Florida. They are crying for teachers down there."

Ingarra has three children:

Joseph Jr., "Rocky," has been at Boston University and recently transferred to Dutchess Community College to finish out the year. He is 21. Daughter Nancy is 18 and attends Farmingdale in the State University system. And Susan is 14, a student at Rhinebeck High School.

This apparent freedom from the chore of raising any more children prompted us to ask Ingarra whether he would reside on Florida's west coast with the retired folk or on the east coast with the swingers. "I think we'll swing just yet," he answered.

His football won-lost record at Cardinal Farley balances out to 20 wins and 19 losses in five years, but the first three years were golden. In 64-65, playing in the tough Central Section against Poughkeepsie, Arlington, Ketchum, and other large schools, his record was 8-0.

The following year it was 6-2, and then 5-3 in 1966-67. The last two years have been rough, with 0-7 and 1-7 marks against the rugged competition.

"There is no way we can keep up against these big schools with our present enrollment of 180," he says, not as an excuse but as justification. Ingarra's philosophy of coaching can be summed up in a few terse phrases, often the words of the winning coach.

"I don't believe in any set ups," he explained. "And I believe there is no substitute for winning. A team should play the best competition available and beat the best, otherwise nothing is proved. If I have to lose, it's the way I lose that is important."

Cardinal Farley will do without a professional coach next year. Brother James B. Carney will direct athletics. Carney has coached cross country, junior varsity basketball, and golf at the Academy since 1957. He served as athletic director at Brother Rice High School in Birmingham, Mich. from 1964-1967. He is a graduate of Cardinal Farley, 1957, and Iona College, and is presently doing graduate studies at Notre Dame.

Joseph Ingarra was preparing for his last baseball game of the season when The Freeman talked with him Wednesday. The skies were threatening rain, but his eyes saw only the sunny coast of Florida.

Police Seek Identity Of Baby Found in Creek

SAUGERTIES — State and county authorities today pursued an intensive investigation in an effort to determine the identity of the body of an infant male child discovered floating in a plastic bag on the surface of the Sawkill Creek near the Sawyerkill Country Club.

Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley gave a preliminary verdict of homicide due to suffocation pending further investigation which continued since the body of the newborn infant was found at about 5 p.m. Thursday by three boys who were fishing at the time.

Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon of the Kingston Zone headquarters of State Police, Investigator Fred Grunwald, Trooper John Salters and County Investigator Thomas F. Mayone of the district attorney's office are directing the inquiry in an effort to locate the mother of the child.

Authorities said the white, one- to four-day-old baby had been in the water for about three weeks. The body was tied in a plastic bag.

The discovery of the decomposed child was made by Kevin Yates, Kevin Carpenter and Michael Miller, all eight years old, who notified their parents and Officers Marvin Osborne and Charles Winters conducted the preliminary investigation and took pictures at the scene. The body was removed to the county morgue at Kingston Hospital by Coroner Hartley for an autopsy, which disclosed the cause of death.

Shannon, Mayone and BCI officers have questioned several persons in an effort to uncover a lead that might lead to the identification of the victim and the arrest of his mother.

2 Fire Calls On Holiday
KINGSTON — Firemen responded to two calls on Memorial Day.

At 11:55 a. m. Engines 1 and 3 and Truck 1 in command of Chief James M. Brett and Deputy Robert Maines were dispatched to the home of Bernard E. Murray at 95 Orchard Street where they found a transformer burned out on an electric air unit. The emergency switches were cut off.

Engine 1 was sent to 12 Stuyvesant Street at 1:31 p. m. to extinguish fire in a car owned by Mrs. Vera Van Dyke. A short circuit in wiring leading to the generator was listed as the cause. Brett and Maines were in charge.

The injunction, the subject of two hearings in Supreme Court, was given until midnight, at which time the Woodstock landfill would be closed to both subdivisions.

Both the village and town of Saugerties contended in their court action that they had dumping privileges under existing contracts with the former owner of the dump, Albert Cashdollar. The town's contract expires in March, 1972, and the village's December, 1971.

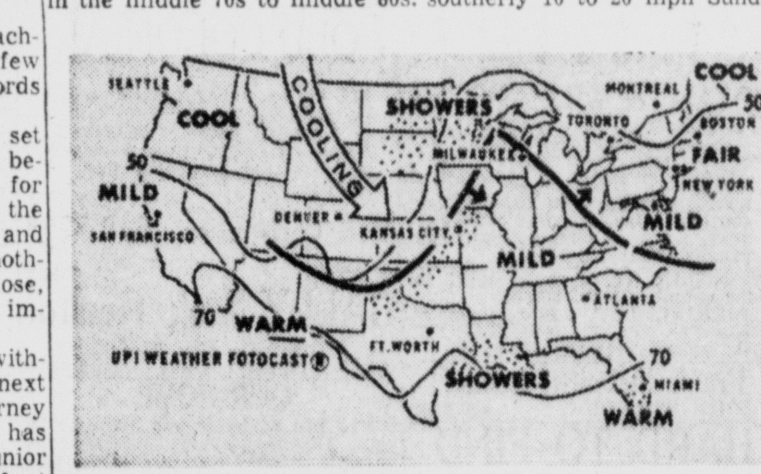

Woodstock contends that the two contracts were canceled when it took over the trash operation from Cashdollar.

Special

Playing experience first got this short, stocky man into the rugged game of football. He received All State and All Mason-Dixon status while playing offensive and defensive guard for Washington College, Chester-town, Md. He was also named to the All Opponent team and was co-captain during his college career.

Semi-professional football with the Long Island Antonians as a guard followed, and professional playing with the Staten Island Stapes of the original AFL concluded his playing days.

In baseball, Ingarra received high school honors, college honors as all-conference as a catcher and outfielder, and a berth with Sparta in the Carolina League, Richmond, Va.

Dear Abby

She Frowns on Raffle

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: I recently gave a beautiful dinner party. I used my good tablecloth and real linen napkins, had candlelight, placecards, and served a lovely meal.
After the guests had finished eating and adjourned to the living room, I went into the kitchen for a few minutes, and when I came out I saw the guests exchanging names and addresses.
I thought, "My, how nice, they are anxious to know each other better." Then I saw money exchanging hands!

Well, it seems that one lady was selling raffle tickets for her church charity.
I became very much annoyed and told the ticket seller in a nice way, of course, that I didn't like it.
Several of the guests defended her, saying it was a good cause, but what else could they say?
What is your opinion of this?

If you don't recognize the double squeeze available in today's hand, don't feel ashamed. Double squeezes are always difficult and it's hard to see that the seven of hearts is a key card.

Now let's watch expert South's reasoning as he plays the hand. He starts by leading out three rounds of trumps. He decides that since West made one of those weak jump over-calls and showed up with three trumps he probably held six hearts for his weak jump bid.
That meant he couldn't have the many spades. Hence, either the queen would drop from the West hand quickly or it would be very well guarded in the East hand. Therefore South discards a spade from dummy.

He continues with the king of spades and a spade to the ace.
West chucks a heart and South has a sure count of spades and diamonds and a good idea that West started with six hearts and three clubs.
In that case the jack of spades is a threat in that suit against East and if the seven of hearts can be made a threat against West, the stage is set for a double squeeze. West will have to guard hearts, East will have to guard spades, no one will be able to guard clubs.

South's next play is a low heart from dummy. East might have the ace although West should. South's king knocks out West's ace and West can do nothing better than to lead back the jack. Note that a club lead would give South a chance to pick up his 12th trick by a finesse.
Now South wins in dummy.
ruffs a spade to get back to his hand and runs the rest of the trumps. Dummy's last four cards are the seven of hearts, jack of spades and ace-nine of clubs. West must discard a club in order to hold a heart. Now the heart is thrown from dummy but that jack of spades forces East to unguard his queen of clubs. No one had been able to protect clubs and the many spades. Hence, either the queen would drop from the West hand quickly or it would be

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

DEAR ANNOYED: Off hand, I'd say it's poor taste to sell raffle tickets to guests at a dinner party, but I would have to know more about how the lady made her pitch.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a wonderful man I've known for years. Mike is intelligent, witty, charming, and he treats me like a goddess. He has asked me to marry him, and I have accepted. Mike is not a nut, he's a sensible down-to-earth guy. The problem? His favorite color is lavender, and he is determined to marry me wearing a lavender suit. HIM not ME!

This is the first thing we've seriously disagreed on. I want a conventional wedding. I've been married before and he says my last wedding, which was "conventional," was a big success,
but the marriage was a flop.

DEAR SHEILA: Why fight so hard to win this one? If Mike is all you say he is, let him wear the pants and choose the color.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if there is any way possible for a man who has had a police record since the age of 14 to become a registered nurse.
He has been convicted of a felony, which had nothing whatsoever to do with narcotics of any kind.

This person has a good wife and a small child, and he wants more than anything else in the world to become a male nurse.
He has rehabilitated himself and will now lead the good life after having learned the hard way. He has a good job (working for the state) and is considered well-adjusted. Thank you for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE
DEAR NO NAME: This person should apply for enrollment in the school of nursing he wishes to enter. If he "qualifies," I see no reason why he cannot achieve his ambition.
Whether or not he will be accepted with his "record" will depend upon the requirements of that school.

DEAR ABBY: My problem concerns two dear friends whose company we genuinely enjoy.
They are a father and son, who together tip the scales at 700 pounds.

They were here last week, and immediately following dinner they both literally FELL onto my couch. It is a sturdy piece of furniture, but with this enormous weight hitting it all at once — well, the springs must now be retired and the decking replaced.

Abby, how can I tactfully tell these people to please distribute their hefty a bit more evenly? I am not going to tell them what happened, but I don't want it to happen again.

TIMID
DEAR TIMID: Next time, subtly "guide" Big Daddy to one sturdy chair, and Junior to another.

Everybody has a problem?
What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700,
Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet,
"What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Sirhan on 'First Tuesday'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A conversation with Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted of the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, will be presented on NBC-TV's "First Tuesday" series next week. According to the network, Sirhan was interviewed by reporter Jack Perkins in the Los Angeles County Jail May 22, the day after he was sentenced to death.

A network statement adds that Perkins "first visited Sirhan in his cell May 19 to meet him and tell him about arrangements for the television interview."

Reviews Whole Life

Says Perkins: "He was very curious. He was curious about how I thought the trial and the verdict had gone. His first question was: 'What's the size of your audience?'"

The conversation, according to NBC-TV, was held in a courtroom used for preliminary hearings in the case, 50 yards down the corridor from Sirhan's cell in the Los Angeles jail.

And, says the network statement, Sirhan "reviews his whole life, speaks of the days before and after the assassination and reveals his thoughts" about Kennedy.

Says Perkins: "He was quite eager to talk. We filmed for two hours and he would have gone on, but the sheriff wouldn't permit us to go beyond that time."

NBC-TV says "this is the first interview Sirhan has given since he was taken into custody."

ABC-TV now has turned to pro football to solve its Monday night ratings problems against the powerhouse lineups of CBS-TV and NBC-TV.

The CBS-TV Monday shows "Gunsmoke," "Here's Lucy," "Mayberry R.F.D.," the Doris Day series and the Carol Burnett program. NBC-TV's Monday entries include "Laugh-In" and weekly movies.

This past season, ABC-TV's Monday lineup—"The Avengers," "Peyton Place," "The Outcasts" and "The Big Valhalla"—got wiped out. And the network is obviously not wholly confident that next season's next fall, for instance, are replacements are certain to turn matters around.

Therefore, starting in the fall of 1970—and for at least the next two autumns after that—ABC is going to offer live, prime time Monday broadcasts of about 13 games annually. The agreement will start with the National Football League. These Monday games will not affect the regular weekend broadcasts of pro football on CBS-TV and NBC-TV.

WHY WE SAY

HORSEPOWER

MEASURE: Horsepower alludes to the original way power was determined. James Watt's first steam engine was used in a mine to rate how fast it could do the pumping work of one horse, which was calculated at lifting 150 pounds, 220 feet, in one minute (or 33,000 foot-pounds per minute). This was used as the formula to measure engines long after horses were replaced.

Rioting Oil Workers Seek Venezuelan Isle

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI)—Rampaging oil workers left large sections of Willemstad, capital of Curacao island, in tatters today. Three hundred Royal Dutch Marines rolled in to restore order.

The violence, fueled by resentment over a strike against the island's major oil refinery, began early Friday. Unofficial reports listed six persons dead.

Striking oil workers surged through Willemstad's quaint streets, smashing windows in jewelry and other plush shops and sacking their contents, touching off dozens of fires, fighting police and frightening tourists off the isle.

Witnesses fleeing on commercial flights to Caracas told of shootings in the streets, fire-bombings and clashes between police and mobs. Damage estimates rose to $10 million.

Witness Describes

One witness making the 180-mile flight from Willemstad to Caracas described the scene he had left as "hell."

Curacao is part of the Netherlands Antilles. The Dutch granted the island chain self-government in 1954 but retained control over military and foreign affairs, keeping Royal Dutch Marines there.

"The situation remains bad. There is still looting and burning," a U.S. State Department spokesman said in Washington late Friday night. He said about 800 Americans were on the island, a haven for tourists 60 miles off Venezuela's north coast.

Crews of two Venezuelan aircraft that took off from Curacao radioed to Caracas International Airport late Friday they thought the situation was returning to normal after the Marines moved into the town, dispelled rioters and imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

"Running Smooth"

The crews radioed that Curacao airport was operating its own power plant, with much of the island still without electricity. But a spokesman one of two that services the island daily, said its flights between Curacao, Aruba and New York were on time and "everything's running smooth."

Communications to Curacao were severed early Friday. The main national radio station went off the air. Hospitals on the island reportedly issued urgent calls for blood donors.

(The State Department in Washington said it knew of no American casualties.)

Damage estimates ranged up to $10 million. Many of the stores looted carried such duty-free items as $2,000 watches, diamonds, perfumes, liquors and photography equipment popular with vacation shoppers.

The rioting apparently was triggered when striking refinery workers learned the island's main company, a subsidiary of Royal Dutch Shell, was recruiting strikebreakers.

Several thousand workers have been on strike for higher wages and other benefits. So far no negotiations between the two sides have been held.

Nixon and Rogers Discuss Strategy

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—President Nixon, relaxing in picture postcard settings of a sunswet beach and a cruise on a moonlit bay, is devoting most of his nonleisure activity to Vietnam peace strategy.

The group also saw an old-style four-masted schooner, the Antarna, now used as a cruise ship.

Before flying back to Washington later today, Rogers will confer again with the President at his bayside villa.

Nixon was anxious for Rogers' report on reaction to his eight-point Vietnam peace plan in advance of his summit session with Thieu on the island of Midway June 8.

The Saigon government leader has been seeking clarification of Nixon's views on a coalition government and American troop withdrawal.

The White House on several occasions has said that Thieu endorsed the peace formula, but his recent public statements reflect his grave concern about Nixon's flexible terms for settlement of the war.

To Accompany Nixon

Rogers, Defense Secretary

See Onassis' Yacht

The Presidential yacht, named after the President's youngest daughter, moved past several excursion boats and the Presidential party gathered at the rail and became tourists themselves when the Julie moved past the Christina, the plush ocean-going yacht of Aristotle Onassis—which even carries its own seaplane.

While on a four-day holiday sojourn here, the President worked on position papers to get the Paris peace talks moving. Nixon also looked over drafts of speeches he will deliver at General Beadle College in Madison, S. D., on June 3 and at the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., June 4.

The President and his family spent a relaxed Memorial Day, swimming in the bay and soaking up the sunshine. Out of college for the summer, the Nixon's daughter and son-in-law, Julie and David Eisenhower, are enjoying a brief vacation which also will take them to Honolulu with the President.

The President will return to the White House Sunday night. He sets out again Tuesday for the Western trip which will give him two days at his newly purchased San Clemente, Calif., estate before he flies on to Midway.

904TH SGT. DIRECTS C-119 TO LANDING

904th Returns to Newburgh, Called Up for the Pueblo Crisis

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEWBURGH—The 904th Military Airlift Group, one of 22 Air Force Reserve units called into active duty following the "Pueblo incident" in January 1968, was honored with a parade and color guard review at demobilization ceremonies at Stewart Air Force Base, Thursday.

The 904th will officially be deactivated before June 18. Thursday's ceremonies, attended by friends and relatives of the airmen and visiting Air Force dignitaries, marked the culmination of an 18-month tour of duty, during which the aircraft and men of the 904th covered the globe with their support missions.

During the ceremonies 32 officers and airmen, who distinguished themselves by meritorious service while assigned to the 904th Military Airlift Group, were presented with the Air Force Commendation Medal.

The group included 11 officers and airmen from the Mid-Hudson Valley area. They were led by Major Rudolph B. Novesky and that the "unit has done an impressive job racking up a score of accomplishments during the tour and all of its personnel from the lowest airmen to the highest officers should be commended.

During its tour of duty, the unit completed 215 missions and transported 8,750,000 tons of materials and 4,500 passengers during 7,500 hours of flying time.

Sergeant Herbert Heyman, of Westwood, N. J., who drove a tractor trailer for the 904th in South Korea, said that he enjoyed the tour.

"It was certainly a new experience, a little long, but a good tour," he said.

The 904th was conceived on January 17, 1963 at Stewart Field in conjunction with the reorganization of the Air Force Reserve troop carrier force.

The present designation of the Military Airlift Group was affected on October 1, 1966 with the transition from C-119 to C-124 "globemaster" aircraft.

This change marked the conversion of the unit mission from an airlift assault unit committed to aerial drop, assault landings and transport, to that of a global airlift logistical support unit.

May Cancel Out Rocky to Bolivia

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he's willing to sit down with militant students and talk over their grievances in an effort to prevent more violence on his South American tour.

In Bolivia, where the governor had a scheduled stop today, a U.S. official said tension was running so high the visit might have to be canceled.

Rockefeller, speaking with newsmen in Quito Friday as he concluded the ninth stop on a tour of Latin America he is making for President Nixon, said, "We are not here to fight, but to listen."

He noted that students have condemned U.S. fighting in Vietnam, and added: "Therefore, it's a shame that they resort to violence here. They should name a delegation to meet with us, to tell us how the United States can enter into a better road in its relations with Latin America."

The New York governor spoke in the aftermath of the bloodiest violence that has broken out so far during his tour. One man was reported killed and several policemen and students seriously injured in clashes here Thursday, the day Rockefeller arrived.

In the port city of Guayaquil, 170 miles southwest of Quito, six students were reported killed and 32 injured in disturbances that were not related to the Rockefeller visit.

Rockefeller said he would be willing to meet with students in any of the countries he plans to visit "if there is sincerity on their part. After all, we're here talking about things that affect their future."

Asked to clarify his offer, he said: "I've made my proposal. This holds here or anywhere. If the militants are willing to exchange violence in the streets for meaningful talks, I am ready."

Referring to a fire that caused extensive damage at the U.S. Information Service library here Thursday after a dynamite bombing, Rockefeller said: "It is a shame they have destroyed a library where 2,000 of their fellow students have been studying and learning."

Berkeley 'Beautiful' for Now; Argue CCNY Dual Admission

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—"It was beautiful," a smiling, bearded young man said after about 15,000 persons had conducted a nonviolent march supporting the controversial "people's park."

But the future of the fenced-in three acres of property owned by the University of California at Berkeley remained in doubt. Friday's march through downtown Berkeley covered a four-mile circular route and involved thousands of demonstrators, some 2,000 National Guardsmen and hundreds of police, sheriff's deputies and California highway patrolmen.

Thousands of white and yellow daisies were distributed to marchers. Many of the flowers wound up in the fence of the disputed park and in a barbed wire barricade.

One young man walked up to a policeman and handed him a flower saying, "I want to lay a flower on you." A National Guardsman, standing with fixed bayonet at an intersection, stood unmoving as an attractive young girl kissed him and stuck a flower in his jacket.

A flatbed truck carrying a rock band and dancing girls stopped near the fence and two young girls stripped to the waist to perform for guardsmen and spectators, who stood amid an impromptu "park" of plants and grass installed on the street pavement.

The demonstrators cleaned up the street litter when it was over.

Meanwhile, a plan to admit black and Puerto Rican students to City College of New York stirred one of the most emotional educational debates in recent years.

The plan was worked out with student rebels during and after major student violence on the CCNY campus, including one bloody clash between black and white students.

Whatever the outcome of the proposal, the issues seem certain to arise at other schools across the country.

This educational crisis began April 22, when Negro and Puerto Rican students blockaded and seized part of the 20,000 student campus, which lies on the rim of Harlem.

The demonstration supported such demands as a big increase in Negro and Puerto Rican enrollment and the creation of a separate school of black and Puerto Rican studies.

After the violence, after the campus was closed entirely for two weeks, after CCNY President Buel G. Gallagher had resigned charging political interference, this agreement emerged with negotiations among faculty, administration and students:

There would be a dual admissions policy, a "two track" system—half the freshman class being admitted under traditional academic standards and the other half coming from slum area high schools, without regard to grades but with regard to potential. "I believe it is a quota system," said Mayor John V. Lindsay, "and I am opposed to it. It is wrong and unacceptable."

"With this program," said an adviser to black students, City College can begin serving the population its charter mandates it to serve: the community."

THEN AND NOW — FAVORED MOHONK TRANSPORTATION

A Sprawl of Turrets & Rustic Gazebos

By JEAN F. DOLAN

On a clear day you can see almost to forever and almost everyone in Ulster County can see you.

Such is the situation for the Sky Top tower at Mohonk Mountain House. This Sunday the view will be one both fore and aft as the grandlady of area mountain resorts observes its centennial birthday and looks to the second hundred.

The tower, a part of the Shawangunks craggy profile for 45 years, was built as a memorial to Albert K. Smiley, one of the founders. Ironically it was his twin brother Alfred H. Smiley who discovered the magnificent view from the craggy peak and hurriedly summoned Albert to share the incomparable find. Albert, then head of the Friends School at Providence, R. I., was "too busy" at first call to travel to Ulster County.

He Came Running

A second urgent note came from the usually conservative Alfred, brought Albert running to the scene. So impressed was he that he readily jumped over his head and into debt to purchase the first 300 acres of mountain greenery and towering grey rock.

Thus the Lake in the Sky was headed toward its destiny as the site of Mohonk ventures which over the past 100 years have included many visitors of renown and many innovations of conservation consequence.

Originally the mountain top was to provide a summer retreat for the family. However in order to maintain this home, it became necessary for Albert to remain as headmaster at his school, meanwhile operating Mohonk as a hotel.

As the hotel operation grew, Albert and later another brother Daniel made more than 120 separate purchases of farms and other acreages as they became available until the estate achieved its present 7,500 acres.

An Aura of Quaintness

There is an aura of turn-of-the-century quaintness about Mohonk, fostered by the turreted sprawl of the main building and the rustic gazebos along the trails.

However the approach at Mohonk from the very beginning was one of innovation, a spirit which continues through today.

Albert K. instituted at his own expense the Conference of Friends of the Indians conducted from 1883 to 1929 and the Conferences on International Arbitration, 1895 to 1917. The mountain top visitors during these parleys presented an impressive roster of names.

Noted guests are part of the Mohonk tradition from its early days. President Hayes, Edward Everett Hale, Harry Burleigh, William H. Taft, William Jennings Bryan, Dr. Booker T. Washington, Andrew Carnegie and in more recent times, Arturo Toscanini, Ralph J. Bunche and Dr. Y.C. James Yen have signed the register.

Topping Alexander Bell

And to further dispel the old-fashioned, quaintness tag, Mohonk's lobby was the scene of the first satellite telephone call. Frederick Kappel, then president of American Telephone and Telegraph, made the call via Echo I from Mohonk to a friend in California as a practice run for the much publicized call made by then President Dwight Eisenhower.

Quaker tenets shaped the Mohonk mood and continue to be a vital part of modern administration. The conferences of the late 19th and early 20th centuries are a matter of historical concern for scholars of today, one of whom credits the "Lake Mohonk Conferences" with "shaping today's national and international ideals and some international institutions."

The original attraction of the mountain retreat was of course its majestic views and nature itself. Conservation of these most natural of resources has been of prime concern from the earliest days. Nature walks with Albert K. Smiley were part of the resort activities in the early years. Before the urban pace had reached today's proportions, such activity was unheard of by even the town house dwellers. Fields and woods were not that far away. But under the continuing direction of the Smiley family, nature walks at Mohonk have continued to be one of the unique attractions. "Esthetic forestry" was another Smiley concept years ahead of its time.

To get guests to the many vantage points throughout the complex, systems were devised in the most unlikely locations and as a tribute to early planner, Daniel (Albert K. Smiley's younger half brother), the roadways rarely need significant repairs.

Beauty Enhanced

More than a green thumb was needed to create Mohonk's gardens on rock outcrops. Top soil was brought in and the formal gardens laboriously established. The accent is on quality not quantity under these circumstances, and the results are beauty enhanced.

In 1963, The Mohonk Trust was formed as a charitable and educational trust to continue the important conferences of the past in a modern framework and to pass on to future generations 6,000 of the estate's 7,500 acres.

A Wealth of Holiday Events Beckons

17—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, MAY 31, 1969

YOU WON'T SEE this particular sculpture by Harvey Fite if you're on hand for the season's opening show at Woodstock's Polari Gallery (next to the Playhouse) this Sunday afternoon. It's a permanent fixture in his "Opus 40" landscape; created single-handedly by the sculptor in his High Woods bluestone quarry. But you will see some of the most intriguing sculpture pieces around if you visit Polari tomorrow from 4 p.m. on for the opening or any day thereafter through Saturday, June 14.

WITH FAN IN HAND, this lovely Japanese performer will be among the 20 talented entertainers featured in "Around the World in 90 Minutes." The International House revue, starring artists from many parts of the globe, is coming to the stage of the J. Watson Bailey School auditorium here in Kingston tomorrow evening, June 1, with curtain at 8:30.

Memorial Day Weekend Funfest

THE GOAT didn't come up the river from New Orleans with jazz, but he is trying to "butt in" on the Cinderella Rooftop Orchestra's act. Proficient at nuzzling band leader Robin Wetterau's ear, he's not adept enough on tuba to "sit in" with the group during stints at the Woodstock Village Jug on Rock City Road. Pianist Wettereau leads his group (l-r) John LeFever, clarinet; Dick Dreiwitz, trombone; Barbara Dreiwitz, tuba; Lon Clark, drums and washboard, through the Dixieland repertoire every Saturday night at the newly painted and rejuvenated Jug. Drop by if you like your music in the Jelly Roll Morton - Kid Oliver - Bessie Smith style, and we guarantee you won't be disappointed.

SUCH LEISURELY CANOEING as this, once practiced on the Rondout near the long since vanished Green Kill Inn at Eddyville, will not be on the bill of fare at Phoenicia today and tomorrow. But highly competitive Whitewater Slalom races in the Esopus, pitting canoes and kayaks, will be offered to spectators at the "Railroad Rapids" on Route 28 in Phoenicia. If you can't go up today, drive up for the finals tomorrow. They'll go on all day long.

THE WATERMELON LADIES in chorine stance are the work of Mexican artist Pedro Friedeberg. Lovers of whimsical art will want to see his show at Woodstock's Jarvis Gallery this Sunday from 1-6 p.m. Sharing space at the Broadview Road gallery in the art colony with Friedeberg will be Jacques Zucker, an American artist who paints in the style of the old masters.

CRACKER BARREL and penny candy days will be recalled this Sunday at the Museum Village of Smith's Clove, down the road apiece at Monroe, N.Y. With Founder's Day and Monroe Day both being celebrated tomorrow, June 1 should be one of the best days in the year to visit the museum's historical buildings.

MEZZO - SOPRANO RUTH CONWAY teams with soprano Carolyn Friday for a duet recital at the Woodstock Playhouse tonight, May 31, at 8:30. Fresh from a concert at Manhattan's Carnegie Hall, they'll offer an unusually appealing evening of duet arias from Mozart operas and songs of Purcell, Schumann, Brahms, Dvorak and others.

DOWN BY THE LAKESIDE is where the action is slated this Sunday. Pack up the family car and head for the Mohonk Mountain House, over New Paltz way, to help celebrate the grand old mountain resort's 100th birthday. Magnificent views will be yours, along with lectures, exhibits and the descent of a time capsule into the depths of the Catskills.

CARICATURE of "Verlaine as a Faun, Playing a Flageolet" is featured in the exhibition, "The French Visage," now on display at Bowdoin College of Art. The work, by Isidore Pils, was selected from the collection of long-time Woodstocker, Dr. Artine Artinian.

A Sprawl of Turrets

The first aim has been carried out to date by six annual consultations involving international students. By personal contact, bridges of understanding have been developed and it is hoped that the ultimate goal of peace will be achieved through this medium.

Hiking and Hawks

The 6,000 acres are in the process of being transferred to the trust as protection from human exploration. Areas already transferred include the choice Trapps area, famous for rock climbing, hiking and hawk watching. The remaining 1,500 acres include the lake, Sky Top and Eagle Cliff, the golf course and various buildings were considered essential to the resort operation and will remain under Smiley family management.

On the death of Daniel in 1930, two of his sons, Albert K. and Francis G., became partners. In 1953, the partnership was enlarged to include Albert's sons, Daniel and Keith, and Francis' son, Gerow who are now the proprietors.

Anniversary festivities this Sunday will include burial of a Mohonk Centennial Time Capsule and a review of Mohonk in the Early Days by historian friends and the Smiley family. There will be exhibits of costumes, carriages and sleighs and other items reminiscent of 100 years ago.

'Head-Hunting' for Art Portraits

A selection of French portraits and caricatures from the collection of long-time Woodstock resident Dr. Artine Artinian are the subject of an exhibition, "The French Visage," now on view at Museum of Art. The exhibit will continue through June 15.

The 71 portraits in the display were acquired by Dr. Artinian in his search for portraits of French authors. After sending his collection to its permanent quarters at the University of Texas, he found that there remained a nucleus of works for a collection of non-literary portraits.

The works range in style from caricature to probing portraits, and the majority are lively and direct records of appearance, which as a body reflect many of the artistic currents of the last century and a half.

Dr. Artinian, a member of Bowdoin's Class of 1931 and Professor of French, Emeritus, at Bard College, is generally considered the world's leading historian and scholar of Guy de Maupassant. He now resides in Miami, Fla., after living many years in Woodstock.

In a catalogue for "The French Visage" Bowdoin Museum's curator wrote that "The scope and quality of the exhibition is entirely due to the zest and vigor with which Artinian has practiced the art of 'head-hunting.'" He said the demand for portrayals of the personalities of the day in the illustrated mass reading matter of late 19th century France stimulated the development of portraiture.

"Many of the quickly observed and drawn visages of the exhibition were the result of a need for an 'instant likeness' necessitated by publication deadlines and have a vitality often denied the academic portraiture of the day," he added.

Dr. Artinian holds an M.A. degree from Harvard and was awarded his Ph.D. at Columbia. Bowdoin conferred an honorary Doctor of Letters degree on its distinguished alumnus in 1966. He has been decorated an Officier d'Academie of France for his "contributions to cultural relations between France and the United States."

A Woodstocker until very recently, Dr. Artinian is a native of Bulgaria. He came to the United States with his family at the age of 13 and became a bootblack in Attleboro, Mass. When he retired in 1964 after 29 years on the Bard College faculty, he was Chairman of the Languages and Literature Division and had earned an international reputation for his private collection of French literature of the 19th and 20th centuries.

STUDY THESE TWO PHOTOS of "Arinna," a sculpture by Geo, and you'll see she has used the same parts in both to create different works. Called "interaction" sculpture by the inventive Highland artist, the works are forever changing — much as a castle built by children with wooden blocks. Since Geo exhibited her first "positionable" sculpture in Oregon in 1962, this new concept of art has spread rapidly, with imitators developing the style across country to nomenclature like "variable design," "moveable," and "participation." But Geo sticks to her original "interaction" in the knowledge that it is more accurate and that she was the first to arrange and allow viewers to arrange the sculpture to suit their fancy and as they pleased.

As Children Use Blocks, So Does Sculptress Geo

Despite its name, Pancake Hollow in Highland is more famous for the "interaction" sculpture created there by artist Geo than for a reputation involving the production of buckwheat cakes, crepes or waffles.

Back in 1962, Geo — working on the theory that the individual viewer and spectator should be allowed to become more involved in the art he visited a gallery to see — began creating what she called positionable sculpture. Exhibiting her first creations in Oregon, she found they had vast appeal for gallery-goers and other artists. Using the same parts time and again in various arrangements, she was able to create a myriad of totally different works. The adult sculpture could be changed forever and anon, much in the way a child uses wooden building blocks in a kindergarten class.

Setting up sculptures of interchangeable blocks in galleries, libraries and museums around the country, Geo invited viewers to involve themselves in her art by arranging or rearranging the sculpture as they pleased.

It Caught Fire

The dimension of change allowed in this process caught fire elsewhere and inspired the imaginations of artists around the world. Almost overnight, there was an international development in art which began to be labelled with such names as transformable, modular, happening, involvement, variable, moveable, or participation.

But at home in Pancake Hollow, Geo ignored "b-in," "walk-in" and "sit-in" art and stood by her original "interaction" sculpture. It was more accurate, she felt, than the imitation concepts that were rapidly spreading along similar lines.

Her tenacity has proved its worth. Many have praised her work as being responsible for writing finis to an era of static art — separated from the spectator and aimed only at contemplation. Individual involvement is the new order — involvement allowing the former contemplator to build, experiment and create for himself... with a rhythm and feeling all his own.

Geo's sculpture usually utilizes carved cement and iron in some of architectonic forms. Her use of symbols handed down from prehistoric times often gives her work the look of an eerie Stonehenge creation. More modern symbols keep pace with today.

They're Not Shy

Everywhere Geo has shown her sculpture, viewers have not been reticent about moving and repositioning the blocks; about becoming a part of the interaction of art by innovating and creating on their own. At her Highland home, neighbors delight in repositioning the compositions. At a recent show in Poughkeepsie, popular appeal and demand was so great, the display was held over more than twice as long as originally scheduled. At a show in Manhattan's East Hampton Gallery, kids "played" for hours with the sculpture before parents took over to do the same.

Now, the Highland artist's monolithic forms are on exhibit in the La Jolla Museum of Art, La Jolla, Calif. Two sets of Geo's interaction sculpture are being shown in the museum's AFFECT-EFFECT show, now on view through June 8. The show, which includes a lecture titled "The New Participation," also includes a group of works with similar ideas in a range of names.

If Geo's work in the California exhibit sits surrounded by imitators, she takes pride in the fact that she started it all, and that the display is the first of its kind in which all art objects are of variable design and are intended for active participation by the public.

And while Geo's cement and iron sculptures, titled "Five-66" and "Arinna," are delighting West Coast gallery-goers, East Coast art patrons are marveling at her "Figure and Frame," another set of interaction sculpture now on exhibit at the National Academy Galleries in New York City. (T.G.)

New Book Explores:

Hudson Valley Dutch Traditions

Alice P. Kenney's "The Gansevoorts of Albany: Dutch Patricians of the Upper Hudson Valley," published last week by Syracuse University Press, is the story of her own people and her own city.

The author, an assistant professor of history at Cedar Crest College in Allentown, Pa., is a descendent of several Hudson Valley families and grew up in Albany. She writes, she says, "to show what the Hudson Valley Dutch tradition was in itself and to place it in the context of the other traditions with which it lived in close contact...."

The Dutch people "came to America very early in the period of settlement, maintained their ethnic identity throughout the colonial period, and retained many distinctive characteristics until the end of the nineteenth century." They included Peter Minuit and Peter Stuyvesant, General Philip Schuyler and "Commodore" Cornelius Vanderbilt, Presidents Martin Van Buren, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The activities of the Gansevoort family and the growth of their influence in Albany reflected the distinctive characteristics of the Dutch tradition. "As individuals," Miss Kenney says, "they were not widely known, with the exception of Revolutionary General Peter Gansevoort and his grandson, author Herman Melville."

The book contains a map and illustrations, and an extensively annotated bibliography and index. It is one of Syracuse University Press's New York State Study Series which includes an edition of Adriaen Van Der Donck's seventeenth century "A Description of The New Netherlands" and John Fitchen's study of "The New World Dutch Barn."

G&S's The Mikado: Big Benefit Shows

Back for a return engagement after a 10-year absence from Hudson Valley stages comes the music of Gilbert and Sullivan. That would be W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, of course, whose "The Mikado" will be the opening event of the Dutchess County Players' building fund benefit campaign.

The long-lived musical comedy is now in rehearsal for presentation by the Players at Wappingers Falls Junior High School on June 13 and 14.

In addition, "The Mikado" will also be offered as a special touring show to play before organizations and clubs throughout the Hudson Valley, with all receipts to be shared. The Players will use their share for projected theatre workshop and production facilities.

Now in the planning stage is a building which the County Players can call home, members hope to build their theater on land donated by John Sloper, past president of the group. The projected site is one acre on McFarland Road in Wappingers Falls. Once the facility is a reality, it will be used to further the group's continuing involvement in regional cultural activities.

Gilbert and Sullivan music used to be very big in the Hudson Valley; had its own Dutchess Gilbert and Sullivan Society. But not since 1958, when that society presented "The Mikado, or The Town of Tipu" has the music of these composers been heard in our part of the land. Several members of the 1958 production unit are working on the County Players production, including Henry G. Taylor, who's play Ko-Ko, and Joyce Pratten, who has been cast as Katisha.

The new production for June 13 and 14 is being staged by Poughkeepsie's Charlotte Lyon; musically directed by Beacon's Robert F. Siebert; and managed production-wise by Paul Di Nonno of Wappingers Falls.

STAMPS

Promoting a United Europe

Many nations of Europe have been espousing the cause of a "United Europe." Stamps have been issued in recent years to help promote and publicize this ideal, and the latest of such stamp sets has been issued by the Federal Republic of Germany, more often referred to as West Germany.

The new stamps show a structure composed largely of the word EUROPA in front and CEPT on the side. CEPT is the abbreviation of Conference of European Postal and Telegraph Administrations. The "Greek Temple" effect represents the ideal of unity for Europe, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

The 20 pfennig is red, yellow, brown and violet. The 30 pfennig is green, orange and violet. The design is the same for both values.

The United Nations Postal Administration is somewhat embarrassed because they lost 1½ million new 10 cent airmail U.N. stamps—in the mail. The shipment was airfreighted from Finland to New York in two boxes and was missing since Dec. 18, 1968. Last month however, the packages were found and rushed to the U.N. headquarters. Now the stamps, originally scheduled for issuance on March 14 have just been released.

Great Britain has honored two anniversaries of famous flights by issuing two new stamps. A five pence pays tribute to the 50th anniversary of the John Alcock-Arthur Brown flight from Newfoundland to Ireland. Portraits of the two fliers and their plane appear on the new stamp. A one shilling nine pence commemorates the 50th anniversary of the first England to Australia flight by Capt. Ross Smith and Lt. Keith Smith. The aviators and their plane are depicted in this one.

SETTLERS CAME HERE more slowly than to other colonies. They came from nearly every Old World country, but the Dutch were among those who came earliest. Like the Dutch group pictured here, they sought out the Hudson Valley in their quest for adventure since they, like many other settlers, were not necessarily in flight from oppression. In a just-published book, "The Gansevoorts of Albany," Dutch family life in the Hudson Valley over the years is discussed at length.

Television

It was planned to have Paul Lynde and Lou Rawls call each other "Lone Ranger" and "Tonto" during their stint as summer replacement for Dean Martin's show. But they couldn't get clearance. So they've resolved it by having Lynde say to Rawls, "Hey, yoo-hoo, Indian person," to which Rawls responds, "Yes, my cowboy friend." They plan to do quite a few cowboy-Indian spots in the series.

How's this for being overly sensitive? June Foray, who's a voice specialist, was called in to dub voices on films that had long been completed and had been running in theaters for years. Of all things, they turned out to be Tom and Jerry cartoons which had just been sold to TV. You'll remember, of course, that they often feature the ankles and feet of a Negro servant, whose voice is also heard. Big wheels of the network shivered at the possible repercussions. So June dubbed the dialogue with an Irish brogue and the ankles and feet were redrawn to make them white. The cartoons run Saturday mornings to kid audiences.

Petite Liz Trotta, NBC news correspondent, is just back from a six months' assignment to Vietnam covering the war for her network. She says the only prejudice she ran into over there was at press headquarters in Saigon. She got resentment from some of the male correspondents, but good treatment from the fighting men.

Would Liz use her feminine wiles to get a story or a favor? "Sure," she says. "I know guys who have gotten smashed to get a story. I'd turn on all the charms to get on the last chopper out of the front lines."

Robert Keeshan, creator of the CBS-TV program "Captain Kangaroo," will be awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters by New York's Alfred University at commencement exercises June 8. The 42-year-old actor-producer will be cited as a "master teacher" and major contributor to the early education of the nation's youth. Keeshan used to be Clarabelle the Clown, on NBC's Howdy Doody Show; won the coveted Peabody award in 1958.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

The Greatest Show on Earth was not necessarily the greatest show on TV, but it was darned good on Highlights of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus this week. Anyone who loves the circus (and we do) must have enjoyed the 12 acts shown, the best of which (for us) were Rogana, the queen of Balance (who used a knife and sword and her mouth to balance a tray of juice-filled glasses); The King Charles Troupe, basketball players on unicycles; and the wild animal trainer with his tigers and elephants.

We're rooting for the Dick Cavett Show to become the success it deserves to be. Just moved to prime time, it's got lots of the Cavett wit, charm and humor that prevailed in his critically successful but ratings losing daytime talk-variety show.

"A Profile of Dissent," second in the CBS Reports series on the generation gap, went right to the heart of the matter — the people themselves — after stressing statistics on the first program. It proved to be a good review of the differences between youth and adult feelings on violence, civil disobedience, young radicals and the new left.

Much Too Much

Too many cooks spoiled the broth in Prudential's On Stage production of "The Skirts of Happy Chance." One story cannot possibly cope with comedy, drama, political and social positioning, heavy-breathing romance and melodramatic mystery all at one and the same time.

Although we saw almost all of The Prisoner last summer, we marveled again at this puzzling and absorbing series and its superb photography. Patrick McGoochan's acting is perfection as he plays a secret agent man who awakens in a mysterious village where everyone is a number.

And, after watching the star of The John Davidson Show in his premiere outing, we predict he'll be one of the top variety show emcees in the business. He's got charm to spare, seems more relaxed than even Perry Como, warmer than Andy Williams, and better with his guests than Dean Martin.

BOOKS

The 'Pro Miranda' Side

Too Anxious to Find a Killer

WHITMORE, By Fred C. Shapiro. Bobbs-Merrill. $5.

The Miranda decision the federal court ruling which invalidates a confession obtained under duress, still is very controversial.

"Whitmore" is a compelling argument on the "pro Miranda" side. A young Negro, George Whitmore, told a Brooklyn policeman he had seen a fleeing attempted rapist, later was taken to the police station. He spent the next four years in and out of prisons (more than half the time in), in trials and under psychiatric observation. He had confessed (before Miranda) to being the attempted rapist himself, to having killed another woman in Brooklyn and to having killed Janice Wylie and Emily Hoffer in Manhattan—the well-publicized "career girls" murders.

Shapiro, who lives in Brooklyn and at that time was a reporter for the New York Herald Tribune, was sent from his home to cover the "capture."

From then on he covered the story, carefully searched back into Whitmore's history and did some investigating on his own. His book is put together in painstaking detail and yet it is able to be read quickly. Sequences and events are easy to follow. Shapiro doesn't whitewash Whitmore's character and he makes it clear that he doesn't think the duress during the confession included beatings. He doesn't sway the reader with emotionally tinged writing, but the details do sway the reader.

How could it have happened in this country that the police were so anxious to find a "career girls" killer that they ignored the fact, among other facts, that Whitmore was so nearly blind that he feared the subway, never took it and had no other way to get to Manhattan where the girls were killed?

Criminal cases and courtroom scenes always hold a fascination. "Whitmore" is an enthralling true case history, often more startling than fiction.

Saratoga Draws Biggest Advance

Saratoga Performing Arts Center, summer home of the New York City Ballet and The Philadelphia Orchestra tells Tempo that over $100,000 in advance season-ticket sales have been received to date. The six-figure amount represents purchasers of the up-to-20 per cent discount season, subscription, and series tickets for the 1969 season of ballet, orchestra, and one night pop-events.

The successful campaign has just closed with a flurry of last-minute takers of the discount tickets, pushing the advance sales figure for the season over the six-figure mark. This represents the top advance sales to date for the four-year-old summer festival.

Individual tickets to all the summer performances in Saratoga go on sale June 8 through Ticket Reservation Systems in locations throughout the country. At that time, tickets to such events as the Saratoga Film Festival (June 20-Aug. 31), "Your Own Thing" (June 26, 27, 28), the New York City Ballet (July 3-27) and The Philadelphia Orchestra (July 31-Aug. 24) will be available coast-to-coast via the electronic ticket agent — TRS.

Gardner Gallery Show

'South of the Border'

Woodstock's Gardner Gallery opens its fourth summer season May 30 with an exhibition of paintings entitled "South of the Border." Emphasis will be on colorful subjects found in the life and terrain of countries south of the U. S.

Canvases of carnivals, native dances, and the dress and customs of Latin and South Americans will point up the distinctive cultures and native talents found on land and sea to the south of us. Oil paintings will predominate, but the show will also feature large land and seascapes in watercolor.

This art "travelogue" may be seen, following the opening, seven afternoons a week through June.

Other art exhibits slated at Gardner Gallery for the summer include:

Where Billboards So Rarely Intrude

By LAWRENCE DAKE

Have you ever yearned to drive through New York State on a pleasant Sunday afternoon and see not a single billboard obliterating the view? It is entirely possible to do so and, in the process, you might imagine that you are motoring through the far reaches of northern Nebraska.

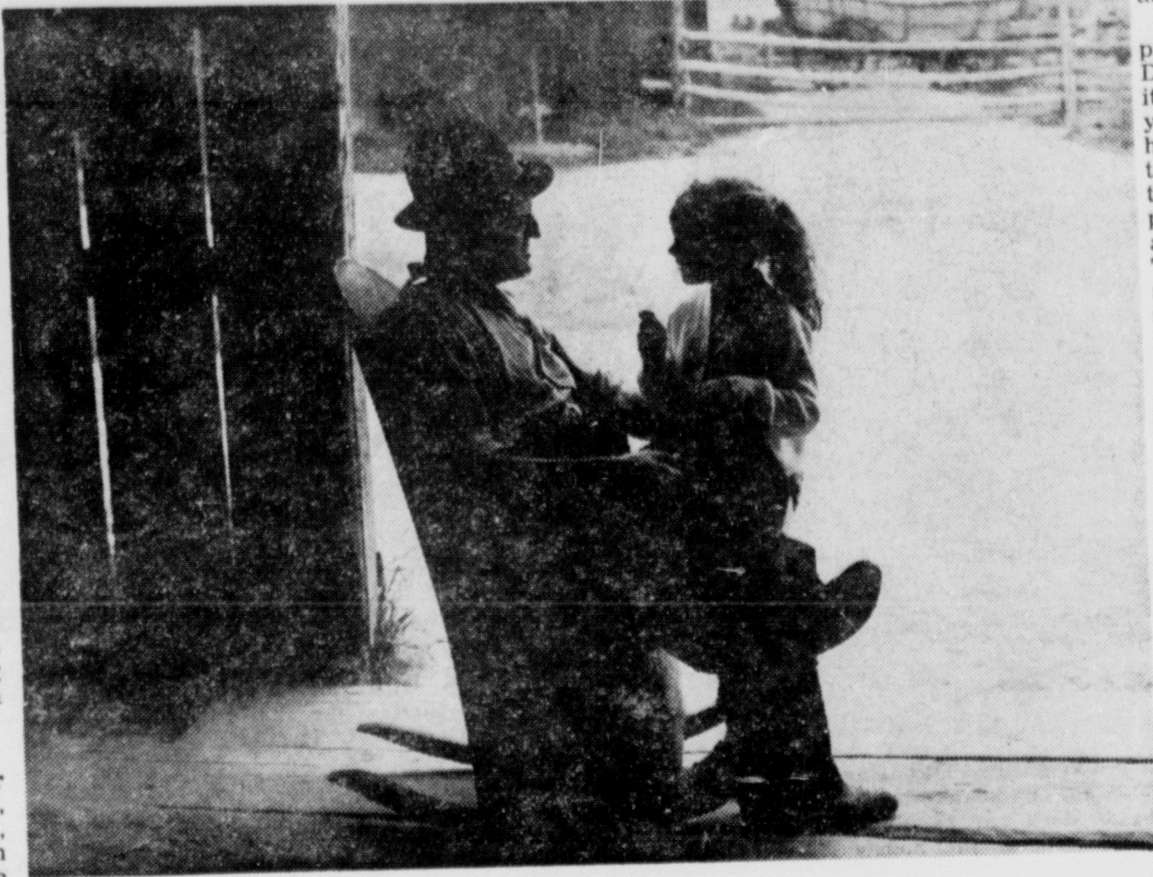

The road to take for such an excursion is U.S. 8 from Bridge-water to Sidney, N. Y. From Unadilla Forks south, this road runs parallel to the Unadilla River, through broad flatlands and rich farms.

To the observing eye, there is little change in the stasis of ploughed fields, and lazy towns where middle-aged and old people sit by store fronts in front of Coke machines. Families relax together on wide green lawns under tall pines while their dogs leap from the yards to chase passing cars, barking loudly and then panting to a satisfied halt.

Cattle Truck Country

Cattle trucks with back door ramps shut on obedient heifers, Holstein, Guernsey and Angus, move slowly from farm to farm or off to an auction. Boys ride on bicycles and younger men drive by in droves, scanning the flat fields for woodchuck. Old Ford station wagons, mud splattered and dusty, convey whole families, along with their pet dog and a carefully packed lunch, over the back roads and down U.S. 8 to visit relatives of a Sunday afternoon, or to a picnic by the swimming hole.

The farms along U.S. 8 do not appear overly rich, but instead have a healthy, used, providential hue. Occasionally one sees a large white clapboard estate, with black shutters and matching farm buildings. The barn nearby might have "Livingston 1735" etched in black over the expansive double doors. Some tracts of land are dotted with red, green, and blue farm machinery for sale. No one seems to be buying, but you get the feeling some one will when the necessity arises. Tractors, spreaders, rakes and wagons everywhere. A landscape that speaks of busy weekdays with only one or two deserted farms lying on the outskirts of a town visible throughout the entire trip.

A JOURNEY INTO THE PAST is possible for those of you with the time to drive along a stretch of Upstate highway. On your rambles you'll see youngsters learning first-hand about the "good old days" from grandpa, be re-introduced to the art of front-porch sitting and be witness to the daily chores that occupy the old homes, barns, shops, inns, churches, mills and schools.

All along the way the land is fertile and the countryside Sunday still. One gets the feeling that the people are happy here, gathering in government subsidies if the crops fail, or if the cattle cannot be sold. The land is theirs and they seem secure. No motel and luncheonette chains, no neon-lit ice cream roadside stands, no gin mill litter disturbs the landscape.

On such a trip, you will probably count no more than two billboards: one announcing the County Fair at Norwich, N.Y., and the other advertising Genesee beer (the old, tried-and-true sign of draft horses pulling the beer wagon right out of the picture). Both advertisements seem somehow significant of the people of the Unadilla River Valley. The residents of the Unadilla, you feel, learned long ago which motor oil is best and which soap gets their clothes and hands clean; need no reminder from Madison Avenue.

Towards evening, the motorist will find himself leaving U.S. 8 and crossing to Route 206 east into Walton, N.Y. and onto Route 10. Musing on what he has left behind, he will probably realize that two modern and very indicative trends of today's youth had emerged from this trek down bucolic old U.S. 8. Somewhere along the line, perhaps in South Brookfield, on the porch of one general store, he had observed a new Ducati motorcycle standing in the shelter of the overhang. And, just beyond that town — on the broad fields, a team of youngsters raced cycles on homemade tracks through cow dung and dusty stubble.

But elsewhere the over '30s sat in the towns on their front steps to enjoy the sun and unpolluted air. Later, the 1960's intruded again as, passing south through Rockdale, N.Y. on old-new U.S. 8, one caught the familiar sound of rock 'n' roll emanating from a farm house at the side of the road. A glance to the left brought into view the electric guitars and drums of the local Beatles, Beegees and Byrds.

Even in the midst of pastoral privacy, the latest beat from Detroit seeps in and impresses itself into the lifestream of youth and, over the lowing of his father's prize heifer, the teenager practices his rock. If the endurance of the land presses upon his mind, his eyes are lifted to the far-off sky over Tin Pan Alley where the dollar sign and the cleft sign dance side by side.

Sitting's an Art.

On the last leg of your rambles, over Route 28 from Delhi to Kingston, you will undoubtedly see a man sitting on the front steps of his house on the side of a hill. He will be staring out over the hills at forests, reforestation, newly-green fields, other people's houses, or at a hawk circling slowly as the warm evening convection ripples through its outstretched wings. Instinctively, you know this man has been sitting and staring for the last hour; will be sitting for another hour after you pass. And you know, too, that his muscles' respite from honest toil made of sitting a singular pleasure, and not something of which most people today soon tire.

Heading closer to home, you see the valley folding its wings for another healing night. And you are impressed with the thought that all the progress of this century and the next cannot manufacture the peace and tranquility that comes from sitting on your own land and staring beyond.

There is probably no billboard anywhere that carries that advertisement in just those words. But in Unadilla Forks, Brookfield, Leonardsville, South Brookfield, Edmeston, Columbus, South Edmeston, Pittsfield, New Berlin, South New Berlin, Holmesville, Rockwell Mills, Mt. Upton, Rockdale, New Berlin Junction — and across the nation in northern Nebraska, people need no billboards to inform them that, perhaps, better than ramblin' is just sittin' and starin'.

ELVIS PRESLEY and NANCY SINATRA sing, swing and speed in "SPEEDWAY," the up-beat musical-comedy set in the dangerous world of stock car racing. The movie is now playing on the double bill at the Sunset Drive-In on Route 28.

AN AMERICAN TOURIST lands in a public fountain in Europe in this scene from "IF IT'S TUESDAY, THIS MUST BE BELGIUM." The hilarious film, all about a bus-load of U.S. globe trotters, whizzing through Europe in search of instant culture, is the current attraction at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre.

MOVIES

If It's Tuesday This Must Be Belgium

This is a movie filled with a great many nice things, and one which takes a bus-load of actors on a whirlwind Vacation Tour of Europe. And because most of the actors in the cast are excellent, "If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium" is a fun film to see, and you can see it at Kingston's Mayfair.

Setting off from London to visit nine European countries, the tourists are shepherded by a jaded young Englishman (Ian McShane), who's gone the route many times before and knows pretty much what to expect of his present passengers.

There's Sandy Baron, as a young Italian-American who makes the mistake of looking up his relatives in Venice; Michael Constantine as an ex-G.I., reliving his World War II experiences; Murray Hamilton as an anti-travel complainer; Marina Berti as the girl the G.I. left behind who aged into a grandmother; Vittorio de Sica as a shrewd shoemaker; and Reva Rose as a housewife who gets onto the wrong bus in midstream. Add a lost wife and her frantic mate, a couple of energetic widows determined not to miss a single moment of what's going on; and industrious postcard writer and her husband, a chronic griper who thinks "Yank, Go Home" the most beautiful words in the English language, and you've got a group of predictable tourists in search of instant culture.

You've also got a relaxed film with nice moments and flashing scenery to remember, and a better than average love story when the attractive British tour guide finds independent, worldly-wise Suzanne (Suzanne Pleshette). She needles and resists him, but finally succumbs on this speedy Grand Tour that highlights intriguing vistas of London, Amsterdam, the Rhine, Rome and other continental high spots. All in all, a sprightly cast in a light comedy that veers from the romantic to the hilarious.

Isabel

French Canadian actress Genevieve Bujold is a charmer and her husband, Paul Almond, is a marvelously talented writer-director. Together, they have made of "Isabel" an eye-spinning shocker that somehow calms the heart while icing down the spine.

Suspensefully told and properly moody, the drama (now at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema) centers on Isabel (Miss Bujold) who comes back to her family's farm on Canada's Gaspé Peninsula from her job in Montreal to attend her mother's funeral. She hopes to stay only briefly, sell the farm, and make arrangements for her old uncle who has looked after the property since her father and brother were lost in a storm years ago.

But she finds herself trapped by what she had escaped; is driven to a state of emotional despair by half-spoken rumors about her family's past and her own deeply hidden memories. She hears sounds and sees images all about her in the 200-year-old farmhouse mausoleum that groans and sighs with the weight of ages. Drifting aimlessly from room to room, the dark implications she feels are strengthened by bits of overheard gossip, old and eerie family photographs, exploratory visits to the attic and dark cellar.

Love or death

The specter of her dead brother looms in a doorway and a face glows in the darkened pantry. She meets an unknown newcomer to the village, who is attracted to her, but he only adds to her uneasiness. If her aged uncle is a walking reflection of her long-gone relatives, the boy is a live ringer for her dead kin — and his strange way of gazing at her seems more a grim beckoning from the beyond than love.

This film is beautifully photographed, directed and acted, and the story with its terrorizing half-spoken rumors and its unexplained circumstances, its ghosts and reminders of a family with a decidedly warped history, is fascinating. The color camera is used as though a landscape painter is handling it, and Miss Bujold gives a performance to be remembered, using all of her fragile, elfin charm and doe-eyed allure to capture the eye and heart of moviegoers.

100 Rifles

The film playing at Kingston's Community Theater takes us back to Mexican Sonora at the turn of the century. The Yaqui Indians are fighting for their lives against a coalition of the Mexican army and the encroaching American railroads. Onto the screen comes a strange trio that ultimately assumes leadership of the revolt.

Entering the struggle are Yaqui Joe (Burt Reynolds), a tough halfbreed who has robbed an Arizona bank to buy a hundred rifles for his people, and Lyedeker (Jim Brown), an American sheriff tracking down Joe. The other member of the trio is a fiercely dedicated rebel Yaqui girl (Raquel Welch), with whom Brown falls in love.

Violence begets violence, torture and killing, as the three forge their way through bloody attacks and counter attacks to Indian headquarters to deliver the guns. Spectacular background action, an explicit sex episode and much melodramatic cruelty have been used to stir up a state of excitement and suspense — but none of this has helped to make "Rifles" a very good film.

Prudence & the Pill

Fertility rites have never intrigued this reviewer, but plenty of moviegoers will probably like this movie (on the double bill at the Community) since it has David Niven and Deborah Kerr as the stars of a farce, exposing the pitfalls of a supposedly fool-proof birth control pill.

The film is certainly audacious enough and positively proves that the best laid plans can indeed go agley. But its irreverent peek into the private lives of four discreet couples and one pair of devil-may-care young moderns, involves too many marital and extra-marital problems to hold our interest. When aspirin is substituted for the contraceptive pills, the final bumper crop of babies who have outwitted birth control seems anything but humorous to us. Still, it must be credited with being a comedy of errors that turns conventional moral attitudes topsy-turvy.

A Space Odyssey

"2001: A Space Odyssey" is back for a rerun at both the Lyceum in Red Hook and the Sunset Drive-In. Overly long for our tastes, it is, nevertheless, a thoughtful, imaginative, meticulous flight into the space age with a mystery-oriented plot. Astronauts head for Jupiter after a shattering discovery on the moon. The leisurely pace of the action may leave some restless viewers back in the stone-age, where the action begins. But those tuned to director Stanley Kubrick's grand, convincing cinematic design should find the unique film a spellbinding, visually exciting, mentally stimulating, brilliantly conceived cosmic adventure. It's in color, runs for one hour and 25 minutes, and stars Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood, and a marvelous talking computer named Hal as the villain.

Speedway

On the double bill at the Sunset Drive-In is "Speedway," with Elvis Presley as a stock car driver who finds that his winnings have been used up by his business manager. The manager has a weakness for horse racing and is a steady loser. So Elvis owes over

Arts & Crafts for an Old-Fashioned Country Fair

27—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, MAY 31, 1969

JESSE DELORA AND HELEN BANACH ARRANGED A PREVIEW OF THE FAIR'S ART EXHIBIT FOR TEMPO

CRAFT BOTIQUE, BEING READIED HERE BY ADELE THEISS, ELSIE SHRIEBER AND MARIE ROBERTS, WILL FEATURE A WEALTH OF UNIQUE WONDERS

The happy ambling and browsing of the crowd, the marvelous scents, the one-for-all, fun-for-all flavor of an old-fashioned country fair will be captured anew on the grounds of the Tillson fire hall Saturday, June 7, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Part and parcel of every fair are the many and varied booths and the Tillson fair, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the local Volunteer Fire Company, will arrange those booths to recapture the flavor of that old-fashioned "box social" warmth.

The unique face of American painting will find vivid expression in a special art exhibit, displaying oil canvases of landscapes and still life. A colorful Craft Boutique will harbor some of the most unusual items at the fair, combining as it does those crafts that are both ancient and new. From the sewing box booth, fair visitors will be offered beautiful, handmade articles of every variety. A toy box booth should be an attraction of every fair, and the Tillson fair will have one to lure every youngster on the grounds. From the attic booth will come an assortment of dusted off and brushed up oddities to intrigue and fascinate. And the green thumb booth will add a flavor of farm-life with its exhibits which have been grown in area gardens and homes. Freshness and fragrant will pervade this booth, and the air around it.

From the Kitchen

The yeasty aroma of freshly baked bread and the pungent, tantalizing smell of warm ginger cookies will attract the crowd to the pantry and confectionary shops, and the novelties booth should appeal to any housewife—as she munches the brown sugar sweetness of a drop cookie—or eyes the jewel glow of a jar of apple jelly.

To satisfy the pangs of hunger of those who come to stay for the day, refreshments will be served by the mounds. And youngsters will dig into the pockets of their jeans for the price of admission to one of the kiddie rides or other youthful attractions.

The Tillson fair next Saturday promises fun in the sun for everyone. And behind all the work and effort going into this event is a worthy cause. Monies raised by the Ladies Auxiliary from their country fair will go toward the purchase of uniforms for volunteer firemen.

If the history of the Tillson fire company is not so old as the history of fairs, it has been on the local scene since 1936. And over the years, fairs, card parties and cake sales sponsored by the auxiliary have drawn crowds in support of the firemen and their needs. Such events paid for the first piece of fire fighting equipment more than 30 years ago—a converted Hudson with a 40-gallon chemical tank, Indian pumps, and ladders. Today's equipment is far more modern (pumpers and tank trucks of the latest make) and much of this fire fighting gear has been presented to the vols by the auxiliary from public response to its fairs and sales.

First Class Outfit

Tillson has had an engine room for 30 years; a meeting hall with kitchen and dining room since 1950, and a three-truck garage since 1957. Its buildings and trucks are well equipped; and the hard-working auxiliary has done much to aid firemen in offering residents of the community a modern, efficient, first-class fire fighting unit.

Extra effort is being put into making this year's fair a marvelously entertaining event, both to promise the public a good time and to replace some fire equipment that needs replacing.

The June 7 fair should be a lark and, hopefully, many residents of the surrounding area—as well as Tillson's citizenry—will turn out to enjoy the event. And enjoy it they will... for fair fun is exhilarating and everybody's a part of the good time informality. (T.G.)

Big Flea Market On Wallkill Lawn

If the day dawns bright and balmy, it'll be held on the lawn of the Wallkill Library. If summer rains interfere, it'll be moved indoors to the Wallkill Middle School gym.

But, rain or shine, it'll be held June 14 in Wallkill from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

It's the Second Annual Antique Flea Market, sponsored by the Wallkill Woman's Club — and it'll be attracting dealers from Wallkill, Ellenville, Poughkeepsie, New Jersey, Kingston, Grahamsville and Newburgh. Also showing their wares will be dealers from Walden, Cornwall, Shady, West Hurley and Staatsburgh. All of which means there'll be a variety of antiques — more than enough to fulfill all the needs and wishes of visitors.

The committee in charge suggests you come early to enjoy refreshments served throughout the day by the Wallkill Ambulance Corps, and to browse around, buy a bargain, and enjoy yourself. "Rain or shine, the day will be fine," says publicity chairman Joan M. Hastings.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The Red Lion is the trademark name of the steeped-in-charm restaurant in Kingston's recently opened Holiday Inn, just off the Route 28 traffic circle. The symbolism of the "red" in the title stems from the fact that the color red has been used lavishly in the decor of this rustic, intimately darkened room with intriguing windowpanes of colored glass.

In an effort to keep abreast of local ethnic eating patterns, we've investigated the Red Lion's recently instituted Luncheon Buffetteria. This is the "Businessman's Luncheon" Ulster County style. Of course, one does not have to be a businessman to partake of these low-priced luncheons. But the Buffetteria is aimed at that ritualistic noon-time meal that must be consumed within a short period of time.

The Buffetteria is open for dining Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. The price is only $1.95 for fine food served with fast service. Among the bountiful and fresh daily delights served are appetizers, crisp salads, a variety of breads, tasty relishes, appetizing hot entrees, sliced meats, traditional cheeses and beverages.

Even Better

If Buffetteria lunching can be delicious, even more fabulous eating is yours for the asking, at The Red Lion during the dinner hours. The dishes listed on the straightforward and unassuming menu (plainly but not cutely printed in red and black) have been excellently prepared; are total perfection.

The chef recommends the Surf and Turf or Twin Lobster Tails platter. Both are listed at $5.95, and both arrive at your table accompanied by such filling items as drawn butter sauce, baked Idaho potato, salad and vegetable. Particularly satisfying is another specialty of the house — Steak Kabob a Brochette. The filet mignon which is the center of this delicacy is surrounded by green pepper, mushroom caps, onion and tomato, and served with the ever present potato, salad and vegetable.

From the broiler (which means it's our favorite kind of eating) comes inventively prepared menu items such as Broiled Filet Mignon with onion rings and mushroom caps ($5.95); Half Broiled Chicken with spiced apple ring ($2.95); Broiled Boneless Strip Steak ($5.75); and Broiled Club Steak ($4.50) — all served with tasty onion rings and flavorful mushroom caps.

For the appetizers purists, there is a wide selection of such, ranging from exotic to basically simple and satisfying. Choices abound from shrimp cocktail and fresh California fruit supreme, to chicken liver pate with tangy onion, eggs a la Russe, and bedded-in lettuce crabmeat cocktail supreme.

If the traditional American steaks and chicken, or the veal cutlet Parmigiana or roast turkey fails to catch your eye, you will probably order from the seafare side of the menu. Here, too, the Lion excels. Masterful concoctions one and all are the broiled salmon steak, fried fillet of sole, broiled fillet of red snapper and fried shrimp or scallops. But so superior that it has lured us back several times is the burgeoning Fisherman's Platter, a filling repast of breaded shrimp, fillet of sole and absolutely yummy stuffed shrimp.

Tannersville is lovely . . . the air is exhilarating, our Swiss-American cuisine is tempting. Treat yourself to the pleasure of dining

Potpourri

By JOAN L. WOJNOSKI

If not an Oscar or Emmy, Kingston Hospital Auxiliary's "Stop the Stretcher" deserves some theatrical award . . . maybe an "Oswald?" No matter what spectators expected, '69 follies surpassed highest hopes.

Ted Feeney was unbelievable; Bill Merrill, unforgettable; and Frank Vogt, unsurpassable. (And dressed as "dolls," they were all "unforgivable.") Those precision chorus numbers with Rockettes and Roaring '20s flappers were, honest to Betsy, humdingers; costumes might have been let-out and taken-in, tried-on, and shipped from here to there, but from off-stage the space flight, can-can and cowgirls' outfits were little shy of slightly spectacular. Dottie Rifenbary gave it her all; Kay Gaffken stood out in the crowd; Ginger Kaiser's face and form would launch a thousand "skits;" Dodie Vogt was a born scene-stealer; and Kay Gilligan was a knock-out as Mae West.

If the revue earned an "Oswald," the program rates our personal Pulitzer Prize for best ever printed, barring none. We guarded it with, "Keep your paws off our program" tactics. Wording on last page broke us up: "Due to circumstances beyond our control, this program may be all wrong. In which case, we apologize." Almost gave co-chairmen Mrs. Ray Armater and Mrs. Chris Larios an open permit to goof all they wanted.

Even Daily Freeman got in on (every) act, supplying paperbags with Freeman monogram to four girls who played "Newsboys," shouting out with the "extras."

We have it on best authority that what looked like H2O in glasses during Parisienne scene, was the real McCoy; ask Bebe O'Reilly.

Jim Thompson was a masked bandit in final scene, then selected Diamond Dan in Auxiliary's contest; either way he gave his usual 14-carat performance. But then, with Thompson Ham Co. in family all those years, is it so unusual that some you-know-what rubbed off?

The hidden talent that professional director Chris Carter brought to light from this group of mavericks was startling. Dollars to donuts this won't be the last revue. Three suggestions for '70: move those chorus girls from "back row" to front — they earned it; more politicians on the scene — it's that kind of punch that pulls in polls; size 40 Diamond Dan costume for Jim Thompson with hitch that he must be able to fit into it by 1970, and a contest to guess number of pounds — at a nickle-a-pound—that Jim will lose during the year. Proceeds to hospital, of course. That way Jim will have to lose to win, and either way it's for a good cause.

Fall to Bring a Baroque Ensemble

There'll be a Baroque Ensemble at Ulster County Community College next fall if present plans by the Music Department to organize such a group fall properly into place.

"A full fledged Baroque Ensemble will be quite an accomplishment for the college," says department chairman Robert Stein, "since there are so few of them in the country." Stein feels that, with this group, "We will be able to play Baroque music as it was intended to be played."

Tempo agrees that the formation of such an ensemble, home-based on the Stone Ridge campus, would be a real treat for music lovers in the area.

Will Need These

To form the Baroque Ensemble, Stein will need a flute player, a harpsichord player, a cello or bassoon player, two violin players and an oboe player.

Next fall, he also has plans to increase the size of the College Chorus which presently has 35 members.

Stein expanded the music program at the community college this past year, forming a Dance Band, Vocal Ensemble and an Instrumental Ensemble in addition to the Chorus.

These groups will be continued next year, and he expects to make the vocal and instrumental ensembles available for music programs at area high schools.

Hundreds Came

Stein said approximately 300 persons attended the college's recent sixth annual Spring Concert at the Clifford Miller School in Lake Katrine.

"The Chorus, Dance Band and the Ensembles gave fine performances at the concert," he said, "and received much acclaim from members of the community."

In addition to this concert, the musical groups at the college gave four other concerts during the academic year and Stein is planning to continue this active music program for next year.

Enrollment in the musical organizations is open to students with or without credit and to members of the community.

Anyone wishing to be placed on the Music Department's mailing list should write or call the Music Department at the college's Stone Ridge campus.

'Sunrise at Campobello' Booked For 13-Weeks Run at Hyde Park

Thousands of people from all over the world visit Hyde Park every year, brought there by the lure of the Roosevelt Historic Site. With the Dutchess County mansion that played such a major role in history during Franklin D. Roosevelt's years as U.S. President such a popular tourist attraction, why not some major entertainment event nearby that would tie-in?

Why not, indeed? And now the question receives an answer in the announcement that that most popular of plays, "Sunrise at Campobello," is all set for a run of 13 weeks this summer at the elegant Hyde Park Playhouse.

Kermit Goell, playwright and songwriter whose "Near You" is considered a pop classic, will produce "Campobello" this season as part of a unique venture that has captured the imagination of the Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce, which will back the staging. Goell believes the production of the play will meet with rousing success, since the historic significance of the drama makes its presentation at Hyde Park a natural extension of a visit to the Roosevelt Historic Site.

Going Into Rehearsal

The Hyde Park Playhouse, one of the most beautiful summer stock theaters in the country, will reopen June 17 with the first preview of "Campobello." Opening night date will be June 21 or 22, and rehearsals begin June 2 in new York City; shift to Hyde Park June 9.

Henderson Forsythe will portray Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Forsythe was recently seen on Broadway in Harold Pinter's "The Birthday Party" and in Edward Albee's prize-winning play, "A Delicate Balance." He has appeared in three Albee plays.

Forsythe is familiar to millions of daytime television viewers as David Stewart in "As The World Turns." He will be commuting between new York City, where he'll continue on the television show, and Hyde Park, where he will be portraying FDR eight times a week. On occasion, Forsythe may be written out of the TV series for a day or two, if commuting becomes a major problem.

"Sunrise at Campobello," written by Dore Schary, was first produced on Broadway in 1958, with Ralph Bellamy playing FDR. The play deals primarily with the personal and family life of President Roosevelt from 1921 to 1924 when he was stricken with infantile paralysis and fought his way back to a normal life.

There's a Chance

Dore Schary may possibly direct the Kermit Goell production of "Sunrise" at Hyde Park.

Goell has scheduled four matinee performances and four evening performances each week. Matinees will be Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday at 3:30 p.m. Evening performances are set for Tuesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30.

"Sunrise at Campobello" is expected to be a boost to the tourist attractions of Hyde Park. Similar projects are enjoyed by audiences in places such as Williamsburg, Virginia and Manteo, North Carolina. Pageants and plays of historical interest in these areas attract standing room only audiences year after year. And Goell says actor Forsythe will be earning his pay. In addition to commuting, and the TV series, his demanding lead role in "Sunrise at Campobello" means he'll be playing this particular part 100 times. But he looks forward to the chance to be a part "of history come to life."
